POLITICAL.

Horace Greeley's Opinion of Francis Kernan.

The Fifth of November a Legal Holiday.

A Ring Candidate for Assembly on Long Island.

Effect of the Greeley Victory in Georgia.

Specimen Democrat for Congress in the Ninth District.

Horace Greeley on Francis Kernan.

"In 1869 he was nominated and supported on the pledge that he would give a vigorous support to the war, and to the Administration in prosecuting it—pledges which he did not scruple personally to make and conspicuously to violate. There is not a more envenomed Copperhead in the present Congress. Even salutary fear of his Republican constituency did not deter him from voting generally with Fendleton, Long, Harris & Co., against most war measures, and when he did not venture to vote on that side he generally dodged. In short, his election was a fraud, grounded in treachery and false promises, and consummated by wholesale bribery, and he ought long since to have resigned."—New-York Tribune, October, 1864.

KERNAN ASSENTS.

"But, says some zealous Grant man, you know that this man has said everything against you, and you are entirely too honest and patriotic to vote for a man that differed from you so broadly in the past. I say to every Democrat within the sound of my voice that Horace Greeley is an honest man.—Speech of Francis Kernan at Tammany Hall, Oct. 27, 1872."

Election Day.

We hope our business friends will remember that, under the provisions of the new State Election laws, to-morrow week (the 5th of November) will be a legal holiday. It is well to keep this fact in mind. We hope much from the exertions of clerks and other young men in mercantile houses.

The Next Assembly.

A Ring Assemblyman that should certainly be left at home is Mr. James M. Oakley, of Queens County, Long Island. He is up for reelection in the Second Assembly District, comprising the towns of Newtown, Jamaica and Hempstead, and Long Island City. His record at Albany for the last two years is simply as bad as it could possibly be made. He voted for the Harlem Court-house bill two years ago. At the same time he voted for other Tweed bills, such as the Buffalo Police, extra clerks for the Courts in this City, and last year he voted against the impeachment of Barnard, and in every way against the reform charter. The Republicans and Reformers of Queens County have put up a first-class young man against Oakley this year—Mr. Theodore J. Cogswell, of Jamaica—and we are assured by Mr. L. Bradford Prince and others that if elected he will make a good record at Albany. Against such an opponent as Oakley there ought to be no doubt about the result. Here is the damning evidence of Oakley's conduct on the Barnard impeachment:

ALBANY, Thursday, May 2, 1872.—Mr. Prince called from the table the report of the Judiciary Committee, recommending Barnard's impeachment, and spoke at some length moving the adoption; also Mr. Hill (Democrat) also spoke in support of the Committee's report, and hoped that every member would vote to sustain it. The report was adopted by a vote of 83 to 16. We have not space for the whole vote, but give those in the negative, viz.:

NAYS—Messrs. Allen, Blair, Campbell, Chambers, Cook, Conchman, Murphy, Fields, Houghton, J. Hayes, Healey, Lord, Moseley, Mosher, Oakley, Roche—16.

The State Vote.

Let none of our friends be in doubt about the result of the contest in New-York State. Our advices from all parts assure us of success—and, as our readers will remember, we have never been disposed to take too rosy a view of our prospects throughout the canvass. The result of the elections, thus far, has been better than we led the public to anticipate. We feel quite confident of carrying New-York, but we do not wish our friends to let confidence produce any cessation of their efforts. We have a little over a week to work in. Let us improve every moment of the time.

The Ninth Congressional District.

The nominations of John Hardy and Michael Connolly for Congress in the Ninth District is a conspicuous example of the utter degradation of Democratic party politics in this City. Mr. Hardy was Clerk of the Common Council when the great stealing operations of the Ring were going on, and his relations with its members were such that he must have had a knowledge of the plunder, or he was too dull to perform the duties of his position. Connolly is known as the Big Judge. For some time he held the position described by law as a committing Magistrate, but the functions of the office under his administration were those of a dismissing Magistrate. He sat to dispense with the penalties of criminal law in favor of political friends, and for the purpose of accumulating political strength.

Georgia as a Sample.

The Republican Press of the South is pressing the lesson of Georgia very hard on the Greeleyites. If there had been any doubt as to the negro vote before, there should be none now. In Georgia, according to credible reports, many colored people and a number of white Republicans are leaving the State. The Louisiana Republican, commenting on this fact, says, in a most temperate tone:

"Would any such action have disturbed the Democrats if the Republicans had been successful? Ho.—And this shows the point of our objections adherence to the Republican tickets in this State, that if it is elected it will injure no one in his person, and it will be quite as honest as the opposition promises to be; and if the Democrats are successful they will immediately set about their usual employment, and aggressions that will make it more endurable for a Republican to leave than to live in the State. All the schemes that were concocted by McEnery and Jones against the negroes in 1869 will be revived in 1873, and every man who stands against such injustice and oppression will be denounced as a nigger lover, and invited to leave at the earliest notice."

Grant at Richmond.

In taking the chair at a Republican meeting at Ocoson, Dr. P. C. Van Wyck related the following interesting incident:

"Meeting Gen. Grant at Quebec, in the Summer of 1868, I observed to him that the cause of his absence from our army when it passed through the streets of Richmond, had been generally and pleasingly noticed by the Press and Statesmen, and in this respect differed from the practice in the time of the Cæsars, when a triumph would have been demanded by the Victorious General; or that of modern conquerors in leading their army in its triumphal march through the fallen city. The General modestly replied that he had regarded the fall of Richmond as practically terminating the war, and it occurred to him that he and better go at once to Washington and close the forward. tar of supplies and further recruiting; which he did, remarking he had not thought of it at the time of the matter of the parade, and should have had but little taste for it in any event. The economy of President Grant's Administration was thus foreshadowed."

A Very Simple Question.

Is there any less reason to distrust the Democratic Party now than there has been since 1861? The people have for three Presidential terms steadily refused to commit the Government to their hands. Why should we do so now? The burden of proof that the party is trustworthy rests with itself. Has it given any? It has "accepted" the amendments, but only to get a chance to nullify them by unfriendly legislation. It stands today toward the results of the war in sullen opposition, withholding every word or act of cordial patriotism, and saying and doing only what seems likely to win a new hold on power. Are these "fruits meet for repentance?"

The Republican Nominee for District-Attorney.

NEW-YORK, Saturday, Oct. 26, 1872.

GENTLEMEN: Your favor of the 19th inst., informing me of my unanimous nomination, by the Republican County Convention, for the office of District-Attorney for the County of New-York, has been received. I am deeply sensible of so signal a mark of confidence from the party whose success I have always labored to promote. To be associated upon your ticket with the distinguished gentlemen presented by you for the other County offices is an honor which I cannot decline.

In accepting your nomination I do not fail to appreciate the high and solemn responsibilities attendant upon the position to which that nomination invites me. I can only say that, if elected, I shall enter upon my official duties with a sincere purpose to discharge them faithfully, conscientiously, and to the best of my ability.

With great respect, your obedient servant,

BENJAMIN K. PHELPS.

To Messrs. Thomas Murphy, President, Joseph C. Pinckney, Benjamin Pass, Secretaries, Republican County Convention.

A Congressional Nomination.

The Republicans of Westchester, Rockland, and Putnam Counties have nominated Ethan Flagg as their candidate for Congress. Mr. Flagg has accepted this nomination at a sacrifice of his private business, in deference to the judgment and wishes of every delegate to the Congressional Convention. It is believed that this district can be carried, and the Convention sought to increase the chances by nominating the strongest man at its command. Mr. Flagg is an old resident of the district, has been for many years in public life, and has shown remarkable executive quality. He settled in Yonkers while it was yet a country town, and has probably done more than any other one of its many enterprising citizens in inviting that growth which has ripened into the city of that name. Having been elected, in a regular course, Supervisor of the town, Trustee, and President of the village, and Alderman of the city, he has left the impress of his organizing and executive ability on its beautiful streets and public buildings. His town usually gives 500 Democratic majority, but is always responds to Mr. Flagg's nomination by an equal majority on the other side. It is a strong objection to the Democratic candidate that he has only a Summer residence in the district, that his business and his social and business relations are entirely in the City of New-York. The Democrats have awakened to their danger within the past few days. The Court-house, at White Plains, has been filled with persons seeking naturalization under the celerity of tenders in Democratic politics. Other signs of spasmodic activity are apparent throughout the district, but it is too late. A full Republican vote is sure to carry victory with it.

The Political Head-Quarters.

Affairs at the head-quarters of the National and State Committees of the various political parties are extremely dull, except at the Republican.

The Liberal Republican Committee rooms, Gingham Hotel, are at present generally left in charge of a solitary individual employed as a book-keeper. A few Greeleyites, look in occasionally, and depart with sad hearts.

The Democratic Committee rooms, Spingler House, have become the abode of deep and settled gloom.

Hon. Thomas C. Platt.

Of the Republican candidate for Congress in the Twenty-seventh District, Hon. John H. Selkreg thus speaks in the Ithaca Journal:

"Two years since Mr. Platt was a warm and ardent friend of Mike Goodrich, then a candidate for the position. Mr. Platt was foremost in the advocacy of Mr. Goodrich, and by his influence secured the delegation from Tioga County for him, and they stood manfully by him through 1,000 ballots. Business engagements, which could not be waived, compelled Mr. Platt, after a lapse of days, to leave for the West, and in his absence, and without his consent, the Convention nominated him as the Republican candidate. Immediately on his return he declined the position, and Mr. Goodrich then received the nomination. He, however, even under the charges of bad faith made by Mr. Goodrich, worked more earnestly for the success of Goodrich, as the evidence of a very large vote in Tioga County showed conclusively. Mr. Goodrich having abandoned the party, and been made the opposition nominee, we felt, and felt proper, independent of other considerations, that the nomination should be tendered to Mr. Platt, and he made our standard-bearer in the present campaign. The Twenty-seventh District will give him a proud majority. Mr. Platt has for many years been a resident of Tioga County, is a successful merchant of Owego, and has been steadily from the commencement of the Republican organization one of its most devoted and earnest supporters. Choosing in the past to advance the principles of the party as a laborer in the ranks, rather than receive the honors of position, he has more than any one individual contributed to build up and sustain and perfect the proud majority which Tioga furnishes at each election. With abilities of no common order, Mr. Platt will make a sterling and useful Representative, and will remain true to the organization and his friends, instead of defeating the one and betraying the other."

The Twentieth District.

David Wilber, of Milford, has been nominated for member of Congress from the Twentieth District of this State, composed of the Counties of Otsego, Chenango and Delaware. The nomination was made upon the first ballot, which never before has been done in that district. Mr. Wilber is a native of this City, fifty-two years of age, and has resided in Otsego County since 1837. A correspondent of the Binghamton Republican says: "He commenced life a poor boy, and worked out seven years by the month at farming, investing his earnings in real estate, which proved a good investment. To farming he added the lumber trade, and about 1850 he took up the hop trade, which he has followed ever since; and as a successful operator in hops he has no equal. At the present time he is connected with two large and successful banking institutions as proprietor of one and director of the other. In the town of Milford, where he resides, which gives an average Democratic majority of 100, he has seven times been before the town as a candidate, five times for Supervisor, and has never been defeated. He is a friend to the laboring class and the poor man, and is indeed without exception a true friend in every time of need."

Testimony of Truman Smith.

Hon. Truman Smith, the venerable statesman of Connecticut, now upward of eighty years of age, writes to a personal friend in Washington a private letter, from which the Chronicle extracts the following impressive tribute to Gen. Grant and his Administration:

"Certainly no favors received or expected have prompted me to support the re-election of President Grant. I have acted on a thorough conviction that the highest and best interests of the American people require that an unprincipled coalition should be put down, and an administration, which has proved honest and patriotic, be upheld. Very soon after the Administration was organized the purpose was formed and brought into activity to break down and destroy President Grant, by incessant calumny and abuse. The infamous New-York Sun, conducted by the infamous Charles A. Dana, opened upon the President, and has pursued him with unparalleled virulence to this day. We have before us for solution the question whether or not a Chief Magistrate of unspotted rectitude, whose services to the country have been of inappreciable value, shall be cropped out. Would not this be an infamy? Now, I rejoice that no such stain is to be attached to the name of our country!"

Spitting Upon the Platform.

The address of the Executive Committee of the Jeffersonian Democracy of Georgia, and the nomination of an electoral ticket in favor of O'Conor and Adams, trouble the Augusta Constitutionalist seriously. And, in telling why it believes they should abandon their movement, it says: "The address complains of the nomination of Mr. Greeley on the Cincinnati platform as a fatal error, but would have found no fault if a Democratic platform had been adopted. The delegation from Georgia voted almost solid against the platform. That should appease the Georgia Democrats. The adoption of Greeley and Brown as candidates, while voting against the platform, does not preclude future criticism of its propositions. Nor does it bind the consciences of the supporters even of the platform to adhere to their opinions. Men, certainly, have a right to change their opinions."

The Thirtieth District.

In an article describing the Republican candidates to be voted for in its locality, the Lockport Journal speaks as follows of the Republican nominee for Congress in the Thirtieth District: "We have commended to the cordial support of our citizens, and especially of every true Republican, our nominee for Congress, George G. Hoskins, of Wyoming. The fact that Mr. Hoskins was the first choice of Genesee and Wyoming, where he is well known, furnishes the best evidence of his popularity at home. He was cordially and unanimously indorsed by the delegates from Niagara County, especially as Niagara, from courtesy and custom, was not entitled to the nomination. Mr. Hoskins will receive the united and cordial support of the Republicans of this county. He will receive it on the ground of merit, and as a simple act of honor and good faith."

Congressman D. W. Dubose.

Congressman D. W. Dubose has published a card announcing that he is a candidate for reelection to Congress from the Eighth District of Georgia, and explaining why he declined to submit his name to the Democratic Convention which nominated Gen. A. R. Wright. He says: "I then, and now believe, that the constituency of that Convention was so formed that it would defeat rather than carry out the will of a majority of the people. I placed my objection to going before it mainly on the grounds that the policy of a majority of that Convention would not only commit the Democratic Party of the State to the support of Mr. Greeley, but also his principles. This Convention failed to announce any principles whatever; but selected a candidate to carry the nominee of the Baltimore Convention, and in so doing virtually pledged those who support its candidate to the support of Mr. Greeley and his platform. I was not then, and am not now prepared to adopt either the candidate or the principles of the Baltimore Convention; but stand now where I stood when elected in 1870, and where I intend to stand in the future, upon Democratic principles, as illustrated by Jefferson and his illustrious successors, which have secured to this country whatever of prosperity and happiness it has enjoyed, so far as depends on Government."

Murderous Spirit of a Greeleyite.

From the Quincy (Ill.) Whig, Oct. 24.

We learn from responsible parties that a member of the Democratic Party, who is an ardent supporter of Horace, boldly declared for assassinat on not a great while ago. He said: "President Grant is a dangerous man, and it would be doing the country a service to assassinate him, and if I had an opportunity I would do it." A gentleman rebuked him for the infamous expression, but he drew off the barrel of his pistol and said: "I know what I say, and mean it, and hold myself responsible."

The Wisconsin Fourth District.

Hon. Frederick W. Horn has published a card, withdrawing his name from the contest as an anti-Greeley Democratic candidate for Congress in the Fourth District of Wisconsin. He says: "The late elections in Pennsylvania, Ohio and Indiana have deprived the opposition candidate, Horace Greeley, beyond a reasonable doubt. When I announced myself to you as an independent candidate for Congress in this district, it was solely with a view of assisting in the defeat of Mr. Greeley, which is now an almost accomplished thing without any further effort on my part." The Milwaukee Sentinel says that Mr. Horn was in the field only a few days, but long enough to make his influence felt among his German fellow-citizens in Wisconsin and other States against the great fraud that was practiced upon his party at Baltimore. His address to the electors of his Congressional district, and his speech afterward at Cedarburg, were widely telegraphed and published by the anti-Greeley German newspapers. The Republican Convention in this district, to nominate a candidate, is to be held in Milwaukee Monday, Oct. 31.

Local Notes.

The President of the Unity Grant and Wilson Club, of No. 30 Sullivan-street, denies that it held a meeting on the 24th and recommended Mr. Phillips for Congress.

R. Stuart Willis, a well-known Democrat in Kings County, will next week deliver an address to the Democratic voters of Brooklyn, in favor of the re-election of Gen. Grant.

The Welsh Grant and Wilson Campaign Club meets, this evening, at Eleventh-street Church. Rev. Howell Powell, Rev. D. S. Davis, Rev. J. Edred Jones, and Robert Lewis, Esq., will speak.

At a meeting of the Republicans of the First Assembly District, held at No. 154 Franklin-street, on Saturday night, Mr. S. J. Huggins was nominated for Assembly, and Mr. John Ham for Assistant Alderman.

The People's Municipal Reform Association, when was the first organization to place a candidate for Mayor in the field, in the nomination of Smith G. Shaw, it is understood will withdraw their nominee in favor of Havemeyer.

An organization, called the "Havemeyer Association," is now being formed. It will number 500 members, composed mostly of soldiers who have been to the front. They fully indorse the nomination of Hon. Wm. F. Havemeyer as their choice for the Mayoralty.

On Saturday night, a mass-meeting was held at Tottenville, Staten Island. An extra train of cars was run from Vanderbilt Landing, also on the Brighton Road. Addresses were delivered by George W. Curtis, Esq., Col. T. B. Thorpe, Mr. Schaffer, (candidate for Congress,) D. H. Cornelyes, J. B. Hilfrey, and others. The greatest enthusiasm prevailed.

Distinguished Arrivals—Senator Wilson Visits Minister Washburne.

The Fifth-avenue Hotel now entertains a number of distinguished gentlemen, who arrived in this City on Saturday and yesterday. In addition to Minister Washburne, who is residing at this hotel, there are Secretary Boutwell, Senator Roscoe Conkling, Senator Blaine, Solicitor General Bristow, E. C. Bandield, Solicitor of the Treasury, and Hon. E. A. Storrs, of Chicago, Ill. Senator Henry Wilson was at the hotel yesterday, and visited Minister Washburne. He left the City last evening.

Shooting Affray in Fifth-Street.

At about 9½ o'clock last evening Herman, John, and Frederick Fross, brothers, residing at No. 473 Second-street, Brooklyn, E. D., and Jacob Mauss, of No. 282 Seventh-street, New-York, who had been guests at a wedding-feast given at No. 643 Fifth-street, became involved in a quarrel in the hallway of the last-named house. A fracas ensued, during which, it is alleged, Herman Fross drew a revolver and fired three shots at Mauss. Neither of the belligerents were injured, but two of the shots struck John Bonnet, of No. 641 Fifth-street, who was standing on the sidewalk observing the conflict through the open doorway, wounding him severely in the ankle. He was taken to the Union Market Police Station, where the bullets were extracted by Police-surgeon Maclay. John and Frederick Fross and Mauss were arrested, but Herman escaped.

Charles Sprague, the Banker Poet.

From the Boston Transcript, Oct. 26.

The banker poet, as he has been called—Mr. Charles Sprague—is fourscore and one to-day, somewhat infirm of body, but clear and keen in intellect. Loneness confines him to his home, but there friends find him cheerful, instructive, and entertaining. As a man and author he has won so much honor and love from generations, that many will rejoice to hear of his comfortable well-being, and sincerely hope that the evening of his life may be continued cloudless and serene.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITAL.

Abstract of Treasurer Spinner's Forthcoming Annual Report.

Suggestions for Reform—Gen. Walker and the Census—The Land and Indian Offices—Carl Schurz Patching Up His Account.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Gen. Spinner has about finished his report as Treasurer of the United States, and will send it to the Secretary the coming week. The receipts and expenditures by warrant to the 30th June, 1872, were as follows:

RECEIPTS.

Loans	$[illegible]
Internal revenue	130,942,177
Customs	214,822,280
Public lands	2,276,714
War	30,469,012
Navy	3,826,126
Interior	3,260,080
Miscellaneous and repayments	27,775,171
Total net receipts	$[illegible]
Balance in Treasury June 30, 1871	109,617,477
From credited as unavailable	13,242,949
Total	$[illegible]

EXPENDITURES.

Public debt	$[illegible]
Army	36,071,169
Navy	24,508,005
Interior	36,956,120
Treasury proper	34,260,486
Customs	17,248,[illegible]
Treasury—Interest	6,232,041
Internal Revenue	7,570,341
Diplomatic	1,304,510
Quarterly salaries	715,000
War, Civil Branch	1,120,051
Judiciary	5,075,[illegible]
Total	$[illegible]
Carried to unavailable	$13,[illegible]
Balance in Treasury close fiscal year	109,551,941
Total	$[illegible]

As compared with last year, the net receipts have been $121,[illegible] less, and the net expenditures $157,[illegible] less. The receipts from loans were in round numbers, $115,000,000 less; from internal revenue, $13,000,000 less; from customs, $10,000,000 greater; from War, $2,000,000 less; from Land and the Navy, about the same; from the Interior, $2,500,000 more; from miscellaneous, $6,000,000 less. The expenditures on account of the public debt were $154,000,000 less; on account of the army, $3,000,000 less; navy, $2,000,000 less; Interior, $4,000,000 less; on account of the Treasury proper, Customs, Treasury—Interior, diplomatic service, and quarterly salaries and war, civil branch, about the same; internal revenue, $1,500,000 less; on account of the Judiciary, $700,000 more.

The conscience fund has been increased $2,977, and now amounts to $120,124.

Gen. Spinner recommends, as a matter of honest dealing on the part of the Government, that at the end of each fiscal year a full description of all the sums unclaimed for interest be published, that have remained unpaid for two years.

The amount of securities left on deposit by the national banks, chiefly to secure the redemption of their notes, is, in the par face value, $400,000,000.

A new check has been introduced upon disbursing officers, which requires a weekly examination and report as to the condition of all accounts from each depository. Of these 1,735 are received weekly, and copies are sent to the different Departments interested.

Incidentally Gen. Spinner mentions that efforts will soon be made to place the new loan.

A considerable part of the report is devoted to the absolute necessity of such an increase in salaries as will enable the Government to obtain the services of a class of men who, with the present pay, cannot be secured, before any real progress can be made in reforming the civil service. The force in the Treasury is far too small, to allow of proper precautions to be taken. He attributes the late defalcation in New-York, the Hodge defalcation and others, directly to the small force which the law provides for the Treasury. He thinks that honest men without wealth can afford to take offices will, in a great measure, remedy the evil of offices so frequently falling into the hands of those who seek them solely for the "stealings" they afford.

THE CENSUS.

The Superintendent of the Census will substantially conclude his labors in connection with his office with the transmission of his annual report to the Secretary of the Interior the 1st of next month. The preparation of the ninth census publications, including the compendium containing a digest of the other volumes for general popular use, will be finished. The number of the labor necessary to place the volumes before the public will be with the Government Printer. It is anticipated that the first or population volume will be printed and bound, and laid on the tables of members of Congress when they meet in December. The other volumes will follow rapidly.

Gen. Walker has been impressed with the value and need of a quinquennial taking of the census and thinks it entirely practicable, but without reference to a permanent change in this particular, he will propose in his report that a census be taken in 1875, under a law which will permit and make necessary a compilation and publication of the returns before the centennial Fourth of July, in 1876.

The views of Gen. Walker in regard to the barbarous law which he has been compelled to execute in taking the census are well known, but in taking leave of the office he is likely to give them plainer expression than ever before.

THE LAND OFFICE.

Commissioner Drummond has found by his experience in the Land Office that it needs reorganization by a new law. He urged it last Winter, but the persistency with which the "Liberal Reformers," Schurz, Fenton, Trumbull, Sumner et al., kept Congress in partisan political discussions prevented this and other necessary business from receiving attention. Mr. Drummond has shown himself so competent and faithful a bureau officer that his assurance that the highest efficiency cannot be secured in his office without reorganization must be heeded by Congress this Winter.

THE PATENT OFFICE.

The reorganization of the Patent Office, the plan of which we published last Winter, will also come again before Congress. It failed for the lack of time last Winter, and not from any opposition manifested. The bureau will be doubtless erected into a department on the same footing with the Agricultural Department. This would be an advantage in many respects. Almost the only effect of its connection with the Interior Department now is to give the Secretary of the Interior an unnecessary supervision over appointments, and to impose upon him the useless manual labor of affixing his signature to over four hundred times a week to the patents issued.

THE INDIAN BUREAU.

It is doubtful if a Commissioner of the Indian Office, to succeed Gen. Walker, can be confirmed before the meeting of Congress. This office is the most responsible under the Government below the rank of a Cabinet position, unless, perhaps, that of Treasurer of the United States be excepted. The salary is but $3,000 per annum. There are plenty of people who would like the office at that salary, but unfortunately they are generally just the persons the Government would not like to have in the position. The men from whom the Government would like to choose a Commissioner are receiving two or three times $3,000 per year in private positions.

THE "ADDITIONAL ARTICLE."

In reply to the exaggerated statements of the amount expended in telegraphing to England in regard to the additional article proposed to the Treaty of Washington, it is stated that the whole sum was less than $18,000.

CARL SCHURZ AND HIS DIPLOMATIC ACCOUNT.

Mr. Carl Schurz is still engaged in the attempt to purge himself of official dereliction, so as to become a consistent civil service reformer. Instead, however, of walking up and paying over the money which under pretense of being Minister to Spain he illegally took from the Government, as the conscience fund contributors do, he is engaged in trying to manufacture a leave of absence which can be stretched over the hiatus for which there appears no leave upon the official record. Some weeks ago the Treasury accounting officers stated the balance of his delinquency, and called upon him to pay up. Mr. Schurz then wrote to Mr. Seward, recalling a long time of circumstances attending his service as Minister and his return to this country on leave, and making him whether or no he was considered present when he came up to the time of his resignation, April 14, 1869. Mr. Seward replied, in a letter written just before his death, to the effect that it was impossible that he should be able to bear in his mind any particular recollection of circumstances pertaining to a particular individual at that time, but that he did remember that Mr. Schurz remained in this country beyond the expiration of his ninety days' leave for the purpose of determining whether he would enter the army, and that he was consulted with the utmost confidence by the President, Mr. Lincoln, and himself; but the records of the Department, only, could show whether that consent was in writing. This letter Mr. Schurz transmitted to the Treasury Department, and first Comptroller Taylor, not being satisfied that it would be considered sufficient evidence for a leave of absence, referred it to the State Department for an opinion. This the latter Department declined to give, it being no part of its business to adjust the accounts of diplomatic officers, but Mr. Fish stated that the law as the time provided no forfeiture of pay, unless absent without leave, whereas now no pay follows longer than sixty days, whether absent with or without leave. This left the Comptroller free to give to Mr. Seward's certificate what weight he pleased, and it is understood that he has determined to give it the same effect as if the leave had been of record. This will relieve Mr. Schurz of some $600 of his delinquency, leaving still some $200 unaccounted for, which it is claimed was spent for contingent expenses at Madrid, but for which no vouchers have ever appeared. Mr. Schurz will doubtless produce somebody's recollection to cover this item also. But the country will not fail to mark the contemptible spectacle of a great apostle of civil service reform unable after the lapse of more than ten years to settle his own accounts without the help of strained constructions of law, the fading memory of ex-officials, and the lenient treatment of his own inefficiency and neglect by the very Administration which he abusively charges with being guilty of these very sins.

PERSONAL.

Secretary Delano leaves to-morrow morning for Missouri, where he will spend the closing week of the campaign, speaking at St. Louis, and at several other points in the State. He returns to his home in Ohio in time to vote on the 5th proximo.

Special Dispatch to the Associated Press.

A TISSUE OF FALSEHOODS.

One of the Greeley organs in your City stated yesterday that fifteen car-loads of Government plate printers had left Washington for New-York City to vote, having received leave of absence for a fortnight, with full pay. It would be difficult to pas more mendacity into a paragraph than are to be found in the one alluded to. In the first place, there are not fifteen car-loads of plate printers in the United States, and nearly all of those employed by the Government reside in Philadelphia. They are paid by the piece; consequently, if any go home, to vote, those who go have an undoubted right to go, they do so at a personal loss.

DUTY ON YELLOW SHEATHING-METAL.

The Treasury Department decides that yellow sheathing-metal can be withdrawn from bond for the construction of vessels to be engaged in foreign trade under the tenth section of the act of June 6, 1872, and the regulations of the Department, made in pursuance thereof. The Department also decides that the manufacture of yellow sheathing-metal, with a rebate of duty on the copper, cannot be allowed, for the reason that it is impracticable to prove the quantity of foreign copper in yellow metal, or the quantity of spelter coming from old metal.

EXPERIMENTS WITH SAFETY-VALVES.

Mr. John Meshaw, of Baltimore, Superintending Inspector of the Third District, and Mr. E. A. Maze, First Assistant Engineer United States Navy, now on special duty in the Treasury Department, have been ordered by the Secretary of the Treasury to attend a series of experiments which are to be conducted this week at the Washington Navy-yard, for the purpose of testing the efficiency of various kinds of safety-valves, and report the results of their observations. The above experiments will be conducted by a Board of Engineers especially appointed for the purpose by the Secretary of the Navy.

THE SOUTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD.

The scientific and exploring expedition which left Washington last May, under command of Col. W. C. McCarty, of Texas, for the purpose of exploring North-western Texas, has returned, after a successful tour of five months. In the Indian country Copper-ore has been found in large quantities, of a very superior quality, having assayed as high as eighty-four per cent of copper, the remainder being silver and other matter. The coal discovered is also of a superior quality, resembling the celebrated Cannelton coal. The Great Southern Pacific Railroad, and the Pacific and Great Eastern Railroad, pass through or near these banks. Col. McCarty is now fitting out a more extensive expedition, to penetrate what is known as the "Llano Estacado, or Staked Plains," and thence through the coast mountain range of North-western Texas, and will leave New-York about the 1st of November.

ILLINOIS.

Republican Meeting in Springfield—Able Address of Gov. Oglesby.

Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Oct. 27.—Yesterday we had one of the best Republican meetings of the campaign. The city was thronged by thousands of people from the surrounding country. In the afternoon Gov. Oglesby made one of the most powerful speeches ever delivered in the State. It was a masterly effort. His vindication of the Republican Party and of Gen. Grant was clear, forcible, and convincing, and was received with unbounded enthusiasm. Judge Orth, of Indiana, spoke in the evening to an immense audience. His speech was eminently fair, and was loudly applauded. The Republicans of Illinois are at work in earnest, and are determined to carry the State by an increased majority.

THE TREASURY DEPARTMENT.

A Volume of Information About the Public Debt Forthcoming—The Power to Issue the Reserve United States Notes.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 27.—Judge Richardson, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, will soon have ready his volume of "Practical Information Concerning the Public Debt of the United States, with the National Banking Laws, for Banks, Bankers, Brokers, Bank Directors and Investors." Among other information, he says:

"Two hundred million dollars of the five per cents have already been negotiated; but as yet none of the four per cents and four and a half per cents have been issued. These are the only loans now offered for sale by the Government. All others, having long since been closed, are being reduced as rapidly as the surplus revenues, the money obtained from the sale of the new bonds, and the coin in the Treasury will permit. The reduction of the public debt for the three years last past has been at the rate of about $100,000,000 a year; and the proceeds of the sale of the funded loan, which can be used to redeem the five-twenty bonds, and not to increase the public debt, have still further reduced the amount of bonds bearing six per cent. interest.

Of the numerous debts matured prior to the year 1827, there are still outstanding and unclaimed of the principal $97,865, and of all loans nevertofore matured, the amount which had not been presented for payment Sept. 1, 1872, was $6,170,675. It is probable that some part of the bonds and other evidences of these outstanding balances have been destroyed by fire, shipwreck and other wise, and by reason of the death of the owners or other causes. All knowledge of the existence of the indebtedness has passed away from those who might be entitled to avail themselves of the claims. As to coin or gold certificates, the amount that may be issued is limited only by the wants and ability of the business community; and the requirement of the law that they shall not at any time exceed twenty per cent. beyond the amount of coin and bullion in the Treasury."

Under the head of "Fractional Currency" the Assistant Secretary says: "Within the fifty millions of dollars limited by act of the 4th of 1863 and 1864, the amount kept in circulation is determined wholly by the wants and demands of the public, w.i.c; it appears, require fractional currency in the proportion of about one dollar to each inhabitant of the country. The amount in circulation rarely goes above that proportion, making proper allowance for lost and destroyed notes, and when it falls much below, a scarcity is sensibly felt throughout the country."

Under the head of "Payments in Coin" the Assistant Secretary says: "The commencement of the Treasury Department, contemporaneous with the issue of the bonds, seems to have been that when not otherwise expressly provided in the bonds themselves, both the principal and interest were payable in coin; and this construction has been strictly followed and maintained by the Government by the prompt and faithful payment of every such bond in coin at maturity. And the question has been further settled by legislation, so far as subsequent legislation can affect it, by the passage of a law which was the first act of a general nature signed by President Grant upon his accession to the Presidency, only fourteen days after his inauguration, and was an emphatic expression of the sentiment of the people of the country, uttered by a new Congress then recently elected and just commencing its first session."

It has sometimes been stated that the issue of the reserve of $44,000,000 of United States notes is left to the Secretary of the Treasury, and several instances are given by the Assistant Secretary where the privilege has been exercised.

MYSTERY IN MACON.

Queer Manifestations in a Dwelling-House.

The papers of Macon, Ga., give long accounts of some strange occurrences declared to have taken place recently at the residence of Mr. A. P. Surrency, at Station No. 6, on the Macon and Brunswick Railroad, in Appling County, Georgia. Supernatural demonstrations of no remarkable character, it seems, have been frequent there for the last twenty years, but it was not until Thursday, Oct. 10, that they became incomprehensible, violent, and even frightful. A reporter of the Telegraph & Messenger visited the scene of these phenomena, and from his account we obtain the following:

Mr. Surrency's house is a two-story frame house, plastered and weather-boarded. Mr. Surrency, on returning home Thursday, the 10th inst., was astonished to observe the glass goblets begin to tumble off the slab and the crockery to roll from the table, and falling on the floor break into atoms. Books, brick-bats, pieces of wood, smoothing-irons, biscuits, potatoes, tin-pans, buckets, pitchers and numerous other articles flew about the house promiscuously without any visible cause. They seemed to spring up involuntarily, and often were never seen to move until they were shattered at the feet or against the wall.

On Sunday morning the strange phenomena were renewed. The first demonstration occurred about 8 o'clock, when a pair of scissors which had been lying on a distant table were observed to descend on the hearth. A brick, which had been lying near the fire in one room, was seen to fall in another apartment of the house, producing a loud noise. Pieces of crockery were shattered against the doors, but no one saw them move until they were broken to pieces by the sudden percussion against the door.

Late in the afternoon, while all the inmates of the house were at their supper, a noise was heard in an adjoining room. A gentleman was promptly at the door, the windows were all secured, and it was impossible for any one to escape without being observed. Presently a book fell in the passage, which only a few moments previous was certainly seen in the book-case.

On Monday the manifestations were again renewed, in a more wonderful and frightful manner. While a company of ladies and gentlemen were seated in one of the rooms of the house, a hoe suddenly appeared in the middle of the floor, and, without the slightest manifestation of fear, executed a few manœuvres and evolutions, when it quickly retreated to an adjoining room, where, in full view of the company, it suddenly vanished like a ghostly apparition.

An old sea-Captain, who has been an eye-witness to the phenomena and strange demonstrations incident to a sailor's life and several voyages around the world, came to the place determined to solve the mystery. He watched with fixed attention for some time a smoothing-iron which heretofore, by its supernatural exploits, seemed to be the master of the game. Becoming exhausted and thirsty, he leased for a bottle of the "crater," which he understood was in the other room, when, instantaneously the bottle fell on the floor at his side. He partook of the liquor, replaced the bottle and resumed his watch, but, the bottle disappeared as mysteriously as it came. Mr. Surrency is represented as a man of intelligence, and during the time of these strange manifestations he has never been able to offer any explanation of them. Despairing of any relief from such queer demonstrations, he has determined to abandon the place. It is confidently believed that the human agency, which directs these phenomena, it is supposed, will soon appear.

BY MAIL AND TELEGRAPH.

A man named Sewall Thurlow was fatally stabbed in the abdomen at North Gray, Me., on Friday night by John Farrell.

The frame block at the corner of Union and Market streets, Poughkeepsie, N. Y., was destroyed by fire last night.

Thomas Good, a thirteen-year-old bootblack, fell from the fourth story of Nassau Hall, Boston, on Saturday night, and was instantly killed.

The reports that United States Senator Patterson had accepted the Presidency of the Agricultural Mechanical College of Ohio are entirely without foundation. He has the matter still under consideration.

A passenger-train on the Reading Railroad, near Bridgeport, Penn, struck a coal-train running in the same direction, yesterday, and Elizabeth, the engineer, thinks that the engine and was killed. The injury to the train was trifling.

Breaking of a Savings Bank—Excitement in Memphis, Tenn.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Oct. 27.—The card of Mr. J. Wicks, President of the Memphis Savings Bank, in this morning's papers, announcing the suspension of that bank, has been the all-absorbing topic today, as that institution has been regarded as one of the safest in the country. It is reported the liabilities are $175,000, though they exceed that amount. The chief losers are the Southern Railway Security Company and the Carolina Life Insurance Company, the former being nearly $150,000.

A Late Stage Robbery in Idaho.

The Corinne Reporter gives the following particulars of a recent stage robbery near Pleasant Valley, Idaho, obtained from one of the sufferers: "Terrance C. Brady, of Brooklyn, N. Y., says when about two miles west of Pleasant Valley Station, two men came suddenly out of the willows by the roadside, one carrying a double-barrel shot-gun, and the other two heavy revolvers. They ordered the driver to halt, and inquired how many passengers were aboard. One had then taken position behind the coach,

HUNGARY.

The Tokay Vineyards and the Wine-Making.

From Our Own Correspondent.

TOKAY, Hungary, Thursday, Aug. 29, 1872.

The scene is a little bay of the Sea of the Puszta, running up into the hills which form the northern shore of this inner sea of grass and corn. The volcanic hills make a little semicircle, a sunny cave open to the south. This, however, is only an indentation, a small harbor in a wider bay lined with hill and mountain, extending some thirty miles, whose outer capes jut out into the prairie, open to the soft south and west winds, and protected from the north and east. Where we stand the hills rise steeply, but every inch is carefully cultivated, every ledge protected by terraces, and the whole green with irregularly-planted vines to the summit. As you ascend with some difficulty, your boots accumulate masses of this clayey and pumice soil, but it is precious mud, every spadeful of value, for it is the mysterious soil of Tokay, that mixture of the fire-products of ancient volcanoes and of the remains of long-passed inundations, which, with the intangible effects of sun and air, have yielded to man the most aromatic, spirited, and delicious of our artificial stimulants—the far-famed wine of Tokay. As you climb the hill, you see the golden gifts that nature has bestowed on the spot. Far below, toward the south and west, ripples the endless sea of the Puszta, without an interruption to its gentle breezes. Above and around are the encircling arms of the mountain, so that harsh north and east winds are kept away. Here the Winter wraps the covered vine-groves in still another snowy covering, and gives the fruit that vitality of taste belonging to the temperate zone. Here also is the Summer of the tropics, though drier, and the long golden American-like Autumn, giving the grapes long weeks before the severer frosts, to elaborate in the sun their aromatic sugar and to lose the last of their watery and negative qualities. Even the late and changeable Spring—like a late-maturing youth of the human genus—seems to grant a rest to the growth, which makes the later fruit more delicious. Thus far we can go. We know, too, that as we cross the summit of the hill we are laboriously climbing, we find a grape with none of the Tokay quality, so that the shelter from the north wind is an essential element in the composition of this wonderful fruit. We know, also, that precisely the same grape, in other sheltered spots of Hungary, has no such mysterious qualities. We can only say—as we do with the wonderful vegetable growths on the Sierras—that there are intangible and mysterious influences of sun and air and soil in certain localities, which can give a quality to a certain variety that its congeners, or even its descendants, never possess elsewhere. Even all of Tokay is only Tokay by name. There are slopes and valleys in this region of mountain and valley, extending for thirty miles along the rivers, whose fruit and whose wine is of the most common and tasteless description. While again, there are hill-sides and little ledges and sunny coves, where the fruit of every vine is beyond comparison, and whose wines sometimes are so valued and so hoarded that the wealth of princes can hardly purchase them. Then again, such a golden bounty as the best Tokay nature does not give every year. Only once in seven or eight years can the finest product be brought forth.

Indeed, it may be said, that only once in the last sixty years, has the requisite combination of a dry Summer and a long golden Autumn and a late frost been such that the perfection of this wonderful fruit and wine could be produced; and that was in 1811. The wines of that year are beyond all price, and, probably, could be bought in no market of the world.

The hill which we are climbing is one of the gems of this valuable region. Near it the two Ministers—Count Andrassy and Count Longay—have their little costly vineyards; for in Hungary a vineyard in Tokay is something like a cottage at Newport with us—a sort of mark of aristocracy and luxury, whether it be used and enjoyed or not.

Amid the vines little houses are built for the watchmen, to protect the expensive fruit from both birds and thieves. The vines are planted as they are on the Rhine, near poles, but irregularly, I suppose to prevent the wash of water, and apparently not more than two feet apart. Manure is sometimes freely used. The vines are covered in Winter, and again uncovered and the stems cleared from surface roots between the 10th and 20th of March. The roots are then earthed up, and the wall-terraces renewed or built. On these vines there were but few branches high up, and only those near the ground will give the quality of fruit desired, owing to the reflected heat. The soil here was made up of clay, sand, marl, and pumice-stone—sedimentary and volcanic. As we stood we could see that the lowest slope—say for a hundred feet—was not used for the vine; but above the vineyards reached a height of some 1,200 feet. And as far as the eye could reach the hills and slopes were covered with the vines.

THE CELLARS.

A great archway leads us into a long arched gallery, cut into the solid rock, with row after row of the small casks, (of thirty-three gallons,) which are always used for Tokay. We grope along with our candle through these, and come at length into a still older cellar. Here are bottles covered with the cobwebs of many years, and fringed with the parasitic growth which gathers about old wine-bottles. Our host takes down a dirty bottle. "A two-puliger," he says, "just my age!" (He looks about forty-three.) He carefully draws the cork and pours out the wine; it has the hue, even against our dim light, of the sun shining through watery clouds at evening—golden, transparent; the aroma is as of the most exquisite fruit, mingled, perhaps, with walnuts; the taste has something of acid, something of sweet, or a harmonious combination of both, a faint volcanic fire in it, as of the soil from which it sprang, yet softened by the most delicious mellowness and oiliness, leaving an after-taste as of incomparable fruit; a wine to be tasted carefully, as we took it, not to be drunk; reaching every nerve with a gentle stimulus, but evidently of immense power over the brain. I could well believe what the chemists say, that it contains more phosphoric acid than any other wine. We tasted most carefully, but a genial Catholic priest present, a wine-grower, tasted glass after glass of these old wines without the smallest perceptible effect.

"Now, gentlemen, a four-puliger!" This was much sweeter, and more a dessert wine, though some of these, which were very old, had lost their sugar, and tasted like very old sherries or Maderas. "I see you, with the English taste, prefer the two-puliger; but just see this." He proceeded, along almost respectfully, to an old demijohn, poured out a dark red wine, thick and pulpy. "Ich bitte! Die Essenz!" This is the world-famed product of Tokay, the self-boiled juice of the choicest grapes of the best vineyards of the favored region; worth its weight in gold; the essence of the best wine the world has produced; a product which can only be tasted here in Tokay called. As a beverage it is a perfect humbug, and all the world's poetry and enthusiasm over it is evidently "got up" by some one who had not tasted it. It is scarcely more a wine than sugar candy melted. It is simply grape-sugar with a slightly vinous flavor. No one here considers it a wine. It is of priceless value in giving quality and sugar to other wines, and for this it is mainly used. It is far too sweet and luscious to be drunk. It is the mixture of this "essence" with other Tokay wines which gives them often such extraordinary quality, for this is the perfection of grape-sugar and grape-juice.

THE WINE-MAKING.

The peculiarity of Tokay, so far as it has an artificial origin, is from the peculiarity of its making. All through Hungary a custom exists which is almost unknown in many wine countries. The grapes are left on the vines till they look like raisins, sometimes not being gathered till November or even nearly December. All the watery portion of the fruit evaporates, and the sugar remains. The best of these bunches are carefully plucked and then kneaded into a mass resembling dough, being, in fact, mainly sugar of grape. Over this sweet and aromatic mass the must of new wine is poured, and it is left to ferment for twenty-four or forty-eight hours. The first result is a delicious, but powerful wine, somewhat sweet, called "Ausbruch," or extract. This is found everywhere in Hungary, and is one of the specialties of the country.

Tokay is, in fact, an "Ausbruch," though much more carefully made, and receiving its peculiar quality from its grape. The "essence," as I explained before, is merely the juice which has flowed without pressure, other than its own weight, from a quantity of the best grapes, which have dried till they are of the color of raisins. The later they can be gathered the better. A vintage has been known at the very end of November. In this essence no imperfect grapes are permitted. The Tokay wine, however, which is valued for the table, is the Ausbruch, or extract, and is measured by the quantity of dried grapes employed. Thus, a "one-puliger" is from three quarts of dried grapes, kneaded into a dough or mass of grape-sugar, and then a cask (or thirty-three gallons of must) poured over it. A "two-puliger" has six quarts to the cask of must; and the strongest of all, the five-puliger, has fifteen. This is left to ferment twelve hours in warm weather, or forty-eight hours in cold. The wine is then drawn off. What remains in the sacks is again pressed, and fresh must poured over it, and it is left five hours to ferment and then the wine is drawn off, an inferior Tokay called Forditas. Still another inferior wine—the Szamvardin—is made from the dried grapes which have not been carefully selected. These are placed in sacks and pressed out by hand. The must is then drained into casks, and the lees and remains (in sacks) are well pressed by dancing on them. The whole must is then poured over them again and the mass is left to soak some hours, till fermentation begins, when, after being well stirred, the wine is drawn off. The skins are then put into the press or used for Forditas. Maslas is made by pouring common wine over the lees of Ausbruch or Szamvordin. The remarkable thing about this wine is that the best Tokay has scarcely more alcohol than ordinary wine. A four-puliger has from eleven to thirteen per cent.; a two-puliger from eight to ten per cent., and a one-puliger from eleven to fourteen—the ordinary Tokay wine having eleven per cent. Its sugar, however, is its distinguishing feature, being from sixteen to twenty-five per cent., while in ordinary wines of Hungary it is only from one to two per cent. This, however, which renders it so agreeable to the taste, is its great danger and difficulty as a matter of traffic. It is subject to numerous fermentations, which, though it does not injure the wine, always alarms the purchaser. Many imitations of Tokay are attempted by mixing sugar with must, but the result always lacks the delicate acids, ethers and compounds of phosphorus, furnished by the dried grapes. The chemical analysis of Tokay is in part as follows:

Acetic acid, 0.030, 0.13; tartaric acid, 0.30, 0.68; phosphoric acid, 0.04, 0.065; sugar, (unfermented,) 3.0, 18.00. The whole quantity produced in good years is about 4,500,000 gallons; in bad years, 1,125,000.

THE TRAFFIC.

I doubt if ever a glass of genuine Tokay is drunk in America, unless exported by an individual for his own use. It is rare to meet it in England. The great market for it is in Hungary, Poland, Prussia and Russia. But the business does not pay. The Tokay vineyards are the least remunerative in Hungary. And yet of all wines, physicians recommend it the most as a restorative and tonic. Its price on the vineyards, with thoroughly trustworthy vine-growers, is only $75 the cask, or about $2 50 per gallon for an old two-puliger wine, so that it could be laid down in America for $4 50 per gallon. The reason of the low condition of the business is the same, as I shall afterward explain, which has ruined so much of the wine trade of Hungary—a want of thorough honesty in the treatment and dealing with the wine. No one who purchased it could know whether he had a real Tokay or not. The Hungarians are seeing their mistake, and are making every effort to renew the business on a sound basis.

An Adventurous Salt Lake Girl.

From the Salt Lake (Utah) Herald, Oct. 18.

In this city lives a young lady who is seemingly delicate, but although petite in form and figure, is abundantly endowed with nerve and energy. Fond to a passion of the grand in nature, she has scaled on foot the highest peaks of the Cottonwoods, and explored the cavernous recesses of the deepest mines. We have known her on several occasions, when proceeding on foot, with staff in hand, the tall peaks of the Wasatch, to compel her male escort first to cry halt. Our fair prospectress being at Alta a day or two since, saw for the first time in operation the wire suspension tramway just constructed by the Vallejo Company, and her masculine escort proceeded to her, in jest, to take a ride up the wire cable to the mine. She promptly accepted the invitation, when our male friend, growing a little nervous, enumerated difficulties in the way of the trip, but failed to dissuade her from attempting it. The tramway is 2,860 feet long, rises at an angle of about twenty degrees, and the cable is suspended on stanchions forty feet high. There were no other carriages than one seat-bucket, and in one of these, which are suspended six feet below the cable, our heroine, undaunted and alone, took passage and made the ascent without mishap or serious inconvenience, although the swaying of the wire between the stanchions is calculated to create the sensation of not-so-secure. Quite a crowd gathered, and to those a short distance off, to whom the wire was invisible, it appeared as if our fair friend was sailing through mid-air.

Poultry Thieves at Work.

At an early hour yesterday morning some poultry-thieves, who infest Yorkville and Harlem, made a raid on the premises of Mrs. Margaret Shea and Ellen Murphy, both of whom reside in Ninety-third-street, near Fifth-avenue, where they keep poultry for sale. The thieves secured seventeen live geese, which they tied up in bags and conveyed them to the corner of Ninety-fourth-street and Fourth-avenue, where they killed and plucked a dozen of them, evidently intending to return for them some more convenient opportunity. The depredations made by the geese inside the territories of Officers Foster and Murray of the Twenty-third Precinct, who shot them down, restored the birds to their owners.

NEW CHURCHES IN NEW-YORK.

Magnificent Edifices to be Built in Fifth and Madison Avenues—Description of the Buildings and Estimated Cost!

Within a comparatively short time a number of the more prominent and wealthier congregations of New-York City have determined to erect new houses of worship for their worship in size and elegance will rank among the finest architectural ornaments of the Metropolis. The total cost of these edifices will be nearly $1,500,000, and they will have a combined capacity for seating over 8,000 persons. Among the proposed structures is one included the cathedral of the Episcopal Church, which it has been lately voted to build in this City, and which will undoubtedly be the grandest of them all. No site for it has yet been selected, nor design prepared. It is intended, however, to erect a cathedral befitting the wealthiest of the denomination and its representative position in this centre of influence.

The first of the new churches to be noticed is for the congregation of the First-avenue Presbyterian Church, corner of Nineteenth-street, of which Rev. Dr. John Hall is pastor. This clergyman was called to his present position some six years ago, from Dublin, and has since well sustained the reputation he had established for himself in Ireland as a pulpit orator. The congregation is one of the wealthiest in the City, and as liberal as wealthy, and they have finally decided to erect a new church edifice to accommodate the great number who wish to listen to their distinguished pastor. Accordingly, last Spring, a plot of ground was purchased on the north-west corner of Fifty-fifth-street and Fifth-avenue for the sum of about $150,000, which is said to be the largest amount of money ever paid in this country for land for religious uses. After considerable deliberation as to what style of church should be erected, it has been determined to put up on the site a handsome and capacious Gothic edifice, and the ground for it has just been broken.

The structure will represent the architecture of the fourteenth century, and will be built with brown stone. Its front appearance on Fifth-avenue will be imposing, a lofty spire rising from the corner to the height of 300 feet, supported at the northeast and south-west angles with smaller towers, each 100 feet high.

There are to be five principal entrances on the avenue, with one on Fifty-fifth-street, at the rear of the church. These entrances will be richly decorated and cusped, and flanked with polished granite shafts; the windows will be large and filled with rich tracery, the great east window, toward the avenue, being thirty-four feet in height by twenty in width. It is intended to have a spacious vestibule and two staircases in connection with the principal entrances, and four additional stairways at the rear from the galleries. The size of the interior will be 180 feet by 80 in the clear, the ends of the church proper being formed into semi-circles and richly decorated. The gallery will be continuous around the church, with the organ at the rear, and precentor's desk immediately behind the platform and pulpit. If occasion requires, another gallery can be added at any time. The interior is intended to accommodate 3,200 persons irrespective of sexton's sittings, which will give room for 400 more, or a total seated audience of 3,500 people. While the exterior will be Gothic, the interior will not present the sombre and somewhat repulsive appearance associated with that style of building. It will be light, well ventilated and heated, and every way made attractive and comfortable for worshipers. The entire area of the walls and ceiling will be lined with wood to assist the acoustics of the interior, to perfect which much attention has been paid, by the architect, Mr. Carl Pfeiffer of this City. The principle of a wood lining, though not new, has not been applied to church architecture before in this country, as far as known. It is believed and expected that the acoustic properties of the new church will be practically perfect. The heating apparatus will also be novel. Immediately under the main floor of the auditorium there will be a number of steam pipes over which cool fresh air will pass, and rise into the church through registers as fast as heated. By this means an excellent ventilation will also be secured. Attached to the building, on the rear on Fifty-fifth-street, a chapel will be erected containing a large lecture-room with a gallery, a complete series of vestry-rooms, class-rooms and parlors, capable of being thrown open into one large hall on special occasions. The Sabbath-school room will have two entrances, one for boys and one for girls. The new church, with all its appointments, will not be ready for occupation until one year from next September, or in the Fall of 1874. Its cost is estimated at something over $200,000, making the total cost of site and building about $350,000.

A second church enterprise has been undertaken by the Vestry of Holy Trinity, over which Rev. S. H. Tyng, Jr., is rector, viz., the Episcopal church at the corner of Madison-avenue and Forty-second-street. Here, also, the congregation has outgrown the limits of its present building, and a new one is rendered necessary. But instead of removing to another site, it is proposed to erect another structure over the one now occupied, and the excavations for it have just been commenced. The building will be a fine one, costing $200,000. Its style will be Gothic, and its material used brick, but so arranged, colored, and faced with stone as to present a beautiful appearance. A tower will surmount the edifice at the south-east corner, and the internal view will present a richly-roofed nave, sloping out from a steep, slated roof. The interior, unlike that of most Episcopal churches, will be elliptic in form, with seats arranged somewhat like the orchestra and dress circle of the Academy of Music. Above will be a gallery, extending all the way around, the organ being for the organ and choir on the right of the chancel. The ceiling will conform to the shape of the roof, varied with polished beams and arches. There will be seats for 1,900 persons. The acoustics in this church are to be assisted by its elliptical shape, according to the plans furnished by the architect, Mr. Leopold Eidlitz. The entire building will be unique in itself, and a decided ornament to that section of the City. Its completion is promised by a year from next Christmas.

On the same avenue, at the corner of Forty-fifth-street, may be seen the foundation and footing walls of Rev. A. D. Mayo's new church, or "tabernacle," as that style of edifice is now called. It is to be similar to Mr. Talmage's Tabernacle in Brooklyn, which is simply an immense amphitheatre, like the Cooper Union, without galleries. Mr. Hepworth's building stands on a site 125 feet square, and is to seat 3,000 persons. It is to be plain, having a front of corrugated iron and brick walls, without much ornamentation within. The only feature of the building will be its spaciousness, and with a full congregation the sight will be worth witnessing. The house is going up rapidly, and will be ready in the course of three or four months. The cost of the ground and building will be about $225,000. Mr. Hepworth's is now recognized as the independent religious body, called the "Church of the Disciples," but inclining in faith toward the Congregational denomination.

Still another church enterprise is the remodeling of the Broadway Tabernacle, at the corner of Thirty-fourth-street. When this church was first constructed, the plans showed such an imposing effect that they were adopted, in spite of the objection that the massive pillars supporting the roof and galleries would seriously obstruct the view from very many pews. The mistake was observed too late, and for years pale the eloquent pastor, Rev. Dr. Thompson, preached there without the inspiration of a cheerful and unhampered view of his hearers. His successor, Rev. Dr. Wm. M. Taylor, seems to have moved the church members to renovate the interior, and since the 1st of June the work has been progressing. The ugly pillars have been pulled down, an arched roof put in, and, in effect, an entirely new interior made, though the pews retain their position. To all intents, however, the church may be classed as a new one, so great is the change made in its interior. It is now beautifully light and inviting. The cost of the alterations, which will be completed in a month, is about $30,000.

On Madison-avenue, at the corner of Fifty-third-street, is the Presbyterian Memorial Church, Rev. Dr. Chas. E. Robinson, pastor, commenced a year ago. This church must be added to the new enterprises in late direction. It is a handsome structure, and will seat 1,800 persons.

The New-England Church, lately Rev. Mr. Richardson's, in Madison-avenue, has been dissolved on account of financial embarrassments. The edifice did not belong to the congregation.

The Jesuits contemplate the erection of a new church on Second-avenue, near Eighty-fourth-street, which is to be dedicated to St. Lawrence. The present church of the name, on Eighty-fourth-street, near Madison-avenue, is to be fitted up as a college, which, with the adjoining buildings, will accommodate quite a large array of students.

Church Dedication.

Another link has been added to the chain of Catholic churches in Brooklyn, by the dedication, on the 20th instant, of the Church of the Nativity, on the corner of Madison-street and Clinton-avenue. The ground upon which the edifice is erected was purchased on the 17th of December, 1871; the work was commenced on the 23d of April, in the present year, the corner-stone having been laid on the 19th of May ensuing. The building itself is a chaste specimen of the Gothic style, designed by Mr. T. F. Houghton, of New-York. The interior presents a modest but exceedingly chaste appearance, with a comfortable seating capacity for 700 persons. In its organization the choir constitutes a prominent feature, inasmuch as it is purely voluntary, and remarkable for the excellent ensemble of its composition.

THE REGISTRY.

Tabular Statement of the Registration for the Four Days.

Returns of all the Assembly Districts by Election Districts, With Series of Years Registered, 149,910.

It is safe to give our readers an idea of the number of votes that will be cast in their several election districts at the November election, we publish the following tables showing the registration in this City during the four days on which it was taken. These figures are compiled from the books kept at Police Head-quarters, and may be depended upon as exact transcripts from those records.

THE NEW-YORK TIMES.
New-York City.

We beg to remind the heads of mercantile firms that election day—Tuesday week—will be a legal holiday. We hope men of business generally will make their preparations beforehand for this interruption of the week. Commercial paper, bills, &c., will mature the day previously—that is, on Monday, the 4th, this day week—and if the fact is kept carefully in mind, little or no inconvenience will be occasioned to anybody. Seeing that the stability of most of our large mercantile interests depends so much on the re-election of Gen. GRANT, few of our readers will begrudge the one day which they are asked to devote to their political duties.

The fatal disturbance which took place at a "banner-raising" in this City, on Saturday night, ought to be promptly condemned by all parties. Some of the Greeley papers have been whispering ominously about approaching riots, and ETHAN ALLEN, on behalf of GREELEY'S Committee, has published some balderdash about a revolution. But the public generally will condemn any faction which incites a breach of the peace. We are under no apprehensions of disturbances. The elections will pass off quietly, and the vaporings of men like ETHAN ALLEN will provoke nothing worse than the laughter of the great body of voters.

Hon. E. B. WASHBURNE, our Minister to France, arrived in this City on Saturday. Besides the numerous personal and political friends who called on Mr. WASHBURNE, he was received with hearty welcome by many Germans of our City, who remember with gratitude the courage and fidelity he showed at Paris during the Franco-German war. He was the only one of the diplomatic corps who remained in the city, and on him devolved the delicate duty of protecting the interests of Germans threatened or banished for their nationality.

Mr. LAWRENCE (Democratic candidate for Mayor) declared on Saturday evening that he is in favor of HORACE GREELEY for President. So are MATT. BRENNAN, PETER B. SWEENY, FERNANDO WOOD, HARRY GRIFFIN, and the old Tammany gang generally. We do not want to see this faction restored to power. No man can say a word against Mr. HAVEMEYER, and we cannot doubt that all citizens who want to see the taxes kept down, and a thoroughly impartial and honest City Government, will vote for the candidate on whom the combined Reform vote has been concentrated.

Next Wednesday evening there will be another interesting meeting at the Cooper Institute—one of the series which the indefatigable chairman of our State Committee (Mr. A. B. CORNELL) has arranged, to the great good of the cause and the satisfaction of the public. The effect of these meetings has been admirable, and we know of many voters who have attended the entire series—so good has been the speaking, and so perfect all Mr. CORNELL'S plans. Next Wednesday, Secretary BOUTWELL and Speaker BLAINE will address the audience. With two such speakers, there cannot fail to be a crowded hall, and we advise our Republican friends to go in good time.

Can anybody desire honester men in office than Gen. JOHN A. DIX for Governor, and Mr. HAVEMEYER, for Mayor? We know that we can trust these gentlemen—their past lives afford a guarantee that they will not betray or deceive us. Why make experiments when we have a certainty open to us? We hope all intelligent citizens will vote for the Reform State and City tickets next week.

On our eighth page we print, today, a carefully-prepared canvass of the twenty-two Wards in this City on the Mayoralty question. This report has been obtained by a staff of TIMES reporters, who have spent an entire week in the work. As indicating the present attitude of the contending parties, and the probable strength of the several candidates, we believe these Ward summaries are valuable, and we are confident they are as nearly correct as it was possible to make them. The friends of Reform will be glad to find that Mr. HAVEMEYER is daily developing new strength in those parts of the City where he was considered doubtful, so that his election is reasonably assured.

The people of the First District of Oswego County, including the City of Oswego, owe it to themselves to re-elect to the Assembly Hon. DANIEL G. FORT, the Republican candidate. In the last Legislature he was Chairman of the Committee on Canals, and a member of the Committee on Ways and Means, and proved himself an able, industrious, and pure legislator. His opponent is the renegade Republican, D. C. LITTLEJOHN, a man who sat in the Assembly in 1870, when the worst Ring legislation was passed, and, though one of the ablest of political leaders, allowed the infamous measures to go almost by default.

Our readers today will find, on the second page, a full and correct statement of the registry of this City, by election districts, including all the four days on which it was taken. Those interested in the probable vote of this City in November cannot fail to find these tables valuable for the purpose of comparison and calculation.

The Democratic Candidate for Governor.

We have scrupulously avoided saying a word more than was absolutely forced upon us in reference to the sectarian aspects of the contest for the Governorship of this State. Such questions ought not to be introduced into any political discussion—still less into one already sufficiently excited and embittered. But the Democratic and Greeley papers are constantly making insidious appeals for FRANCIS KERNAN, on the ground that he is, as the Tribune boasted the day after his nomination, "a severe"—that is, a bigoted—"Roman Catholic." The World is constantly at the same game. On Saturday last it said: "Roman Catholics were fit to stand guard for the Union in our recent trial, but utterly unfit, says the TIMES, to take prominent part in the peaceful government of the country they helped to save." It is unnecessary to inform our readers that no such remark as that attributed to us ever appeared in this journal. It is simply invented by the World, in order that it may find some sort of pretext for appealing for a class vote for KERNAN, on the ground that he is a Roman Catholic. That a Roman Catholic is entitled to take a "prominent part in the peaceful government of the country" everybody will admit. But we protest against the religion of a candidate being made the basis of appeal to any class of voters. Keep religious differences out of the contest altogether.

If, however, the Democrats will not consent to this course, they will inevitably lead people—especially in the interior of the State—to ask whether, in the present condition of our public schools, it is wise to place the whole executive machinery in the hands of a "severe Roman Catholic." We all remember the attempts which have already been made to overthrow our present public school system, and to establish a system of sectarian schools in its place. Then, there was the effort to banish the Bible from our schools, and various other projects of an aggressive character, aimed at the Protestant sentiment of the community. So far from Catholics being excluded from the good things of this life, they seem to have had rather more than their fair share. At the corner of Fiftieth-street and Fifth-avenue, a magnificent Roman Catholic cathedral is being erected. The lot on which it stands runs clear through from Fifth-avenue to Madison-avenue, and it did not cost the Catholics a dime. The "City" presented it. Two other lots were obtained on the same terms in the immediate vicinity. The value of all this land, in one of the best parts of the City, cannot be estimated at less than five millions of dollars. In addition to this, the grants made to Roman Catholic institutions are out of all proportion to the trifling sums grudgingly given to Protestant establishments. The Tammany Ring kept itself in power largely by bribing the Roman Catholic Church. The heads of that church made a great mistake in allying themselves with any section of political parties—and now, with Tammany destroyed, their only hope is in getting one of their followers elected Governor of the State.

The aggression has not come, and does not now arise, from the Protestants. They have been good-natured, generous, and patient. But the more quietly they have stood, the more overbearing has been the other sect. Since we are provoked to do so, we do not hesitate to say that the public school system would not be secure under a Roman Catholic Governor. Judge from the events of the last few years whether we are not fully justified in expressing this opinion. First our Catholic friends tried to throw the Bible out of the school windows, and their next step would be to get separate grants for their own schools, thus abolishing the present excellent system altogether. Now, these considerations will unquestionably have weight in the approaching election, and hence the Democrats are guilty of an act of blind folly in inviting people to vote for FRANCIS KERNAN because he is a Roman Catholic. Let every man enjoy his religion in peace and security, but do not try to magnify one sect at the expense of another. We have not asked anybody to vote for Gen. JOHN A. DIX because he is a Protestant—although we have not the slightest doubt that many will vote for him for that reason. This tendency will be greatly strengthened by the course now pursued by the World and other Democratic papers.

New-York for Grant.

From all parts of the country Republicans are asking of their fellow Republicans in this State, how will New-York go on the 5th of November? The same question was asked with much greater anxiety, of the Pennsylvania Republicans four weeks ago. Pennsylvania responded with a Republican majority of 26,000, which was three-fold larger than the most sanguine Republican anticipated. Like causes produce like effects. The unexpected victory in Pennsylvania was the strongest possible proof of the intrinsic weakness of the unnatural and corrupt coalition of copperhead Democracy with sorehead Republicanism. The monstrous absurdity of such a coalition, which struck every one with amazement at the opening of the campaign, still impresses itself as forcibly upon the masses of the people as it did in the beginning. Few persons can be prevailed on to engage heartily in an undertaking that is fraudulent and preposterous on its face, and fewer still can be made to believe that such an undertaking can be successful. The natural result is indifference and lack of faith on the part of the masses, upon whose exertions success depends.

It was this indifference, mingled with disgust, on the part of Democrats in Pennsylvania that enabled the Republicans, under the most unfavorable circumstances, to win a victory exceeding in magnitude all their calculations. A still greater victory can be won by the Republicans of this State if they will work with half the energy of their brethren in Pennsylvania. We have already answered in the affirmative the question so often asked by Republicans in other States whether New-York is safe for GRANT. But in so answering it, we have assumed that the battle is to be fought here, and not in Pennsylvania or Ohio—that the Republicans of New-York are ready and willing to work for a victory to be achieved here on the 5th of November, and are not relying on victories achieved elsewhere on the 8th of October. With proper energy, activity, and hard work on the part of Republicans during the coming week, the State of New-York will be as sure to cast her electoral vote for Gen. GRANT as will Massachusetts or Vermont. Every Republican knows this, and so does every Democrat.

The only hope left to the Greeleyites of carrying this State lies in the fancied supineness of the Republicans, engendered by over-confidence. Could they be assured that the full Republican vote would be brought out on the 5th of November, there is not a Democrat in the State who would wager his dinner against the whole capital stock of the Tribune that GREELEY would not be beaten by fifty thousand votes. It rests, therefore, entirely with the Republicans themselves what kind of a victory they shall win in this State; and while we are confident that GRANT will carry the State in any event, we are equally confident that he might, with proper exertions on the part of his friends, carry it by a larger majority than any other State in the Union. And, surely, no State in the Union has more at stake in the success of the Republican Party, and the overthrow of the corrupt combination headed by HORACE GREELEY, than New-York. This City especially, as the commercial centre of the continent, owes it to its own future prosperity, as well as to the business interests of the whole country, to see to it that such an impracticable, unstable, crotchety, perverse, and rattle-headed phenomenon as HORACE GREELEY should not be placed at the head of the Government. It was by frauds perpetrated in this City that Gen. GRANT was cheated out of the electoral vote of New-York in 1868, as the Tribune has oftentimes informed the public. There is now an opportunity to compensate for that great wrong, and redeem the State. With a candidate for Governor in whom every business man has full confidence, with a State and City ticket unexceptionable in every respect, and honest men, the Republicans of New-York have but to exert themselves in right earnest to an overwhelming victory for all their candidates, municipal, State, and national.

"Do the Democrats Choose to be Out of Power Forever?"

It is seldom that we find anything in the Tribune that our readers would thank us for reproducing. The following article, however, is something which every man who has opposed the Democratic Party for the last twelve years ought to keep in remembrance. It will take ten years of active industry on the part of the successor of the present manager of the Tribune to counteract the effect of the fulsome policy confessed in this article. We reprint it in full, and we advise people who are curious in political history to cut the article out and keep it—there will come a day when the Tribune will not like to see it quoted:

"Had the Democratic National Convention of 1868 declared for universal amnesty with impartial suffrage, nominating Chief-Justice CHASE for President, they would probably have succeeded; at all events they would have been morally certain of success in 1872. For such a platform and such a candidate would have held out a hand to the blacks, which half of them would have been ready to grasp ere this. Free him from the dread that you meditate his enslavement, and the moral, industrious, intelligent black naturally gravitates to the side of his thrifty, humane white landlord, employer, or neighbor. It is a dread of enslavement that has kept them too long in antagonism.

At length the Democratic Party has placed itself on a platform of genuine, essential Democracy. As Gov. HENDRICKS well said, 'it has turned its back on the past,' and 'resolves to consider today's problems in the light of to-day.'

On this platform it fights the fight of 1872. Aided by the Liberal Republicans it can regain a fair share in the legislation and government of the Union, if its voters shall be fully called out on the 5th of November. Or it can fool away its opportunity and fall back into impotence by taking a languid interest in the canvass and leaving ten to twenty per cent. of its votes unpolled.

Which is it likely to do? This State is a fair sample of the Union. Let the legal Democratic vote here be polled for GREELEY and BROWN, and they must carry it. Let ten to twenty per cent. of that vote desert the polls or vote for GRANT, and that party is beaten into the dust—how long to stay there the future only can disclose.

The Grant orators do their best to arouse the Democrats to action. They treat them as public enemies who ought to have no voice in public affairs, or ought to speak only to be hooted down. When so mild and kind a man as GERRIT SMITH declares that they should never be forgiven for their past resistance to impartial suffrage, we may judge how the mass of Mr. SMITH'S present compatriots regard them.

Ought the Democrats to exclude themselves from power indefinitely? If so, let ten or more per cent. of their number refrain from voting, or vote for GRANT, on Tuesday week. Those who do so justify the opprobrious epithets so plentifully showered upon them by the campaigners for GRANT.

Opportunities neglected are opportunities no more. Democrats who vote their party of no account in 1872, will hardly find it to vote for or against in 1876."—New-York Tribune, Oct. 26, 1872.

Was anything ever more shameless? No more pretense of reform, but an open appeal to Democratic greed for power. No more assumption of a Republicanism better than Republicans themselves practice, but a public call to the Democracy to come up and take possession of the Government. We have got to the end of the shallow professions of a patriotism broad enough to include all parties, and have come down to a solid commercial basis—so many votes for GREELEY, so many offices for Democrats. At last the mask is off, and we can see what it is that we are asked to vote for. It is not Liberal Republicanism, nor civil service reform, nor even amnesty. It is simply the remnant of the Democratic Party seeking power. What a beautiful "record" the Tribune and its editor are making for themselves! Mr. GREELEY rushes round the country telling the people in his speeches that he means to give offices to Democrats just in the proportion that they vote for him, and his organ comes out ten days before election and says the question of the campaign is, whether the Democrats will take the opportunity to regain power. That is a question, however, which somebody else than either the Tribune or Democratic office-seekers will decide.

A Positive Issue.

It must be plain to every one that the only positive issue made by the coalitionists is "universal amnesty." That is, the one thing the party proposes to do when it gets power is to remove the disabilities of the original Secessionists who, because they broke oaths taken in high stations of trust, have not yet had restored to them the privilege of holding office. Why do the coalitionists make this the prominent feature of the campaign? Simply because they want the votes of those who are in sympathy with the disqualified persons. Their whole canvass is in favor of the supremacy of this class—not of their equality before the law, that is already perfect—but of their political supremacy. We are told that the country is not reconciled till this particular class of secession sympathizers are satisfied. They must not only vote, but hold office; and if only two hundred of them cannot hold office, this is a reason why those who want to vote for these two hundred will be offended. To remove their offense, we must change the whole administration of the country.

There never was anything more bold than this readiness of the Greeleyites to pander to the unrepentant secessionists. For, observe, the secessionists who have accepted the situation, and concluded to respect the wishes of the loyal people of the country, instead of insisting that the people shall respect their wishes, find no favor in the coalition party. Its papers and its orators have only sneers for these. What the country is asked to do—what the Greeleyites are trying to persuade, bribe, and bully it into doing—is to act as if the war had gone the other way. Nothing else will induce this faction to be content with our present form of Government, and unless they are content, everything, according to the coalitionists, is going to ruin. Did these gentlemen, one hour, Mr. LINCOLN'S "little story," illustrating the attitude of the country to those once assuming Southerners before the war? Mr. LINCOLN said they reminded him of his younger brother, who wanted ANN'S knife. "Give it to him," said the father; "he'll be mad if you don't." "I'll be mad if I do," was ANN'S answer; "and," Mr. LINCOLN used to add, "as I was the strongest and had a right to the knife, I did not give it up." The American people don't propose, at this late day, to give up the Government to a party they distrust, for the sake of satisfying a couple of hundred disqualified secessionists and their friends.

The United States Senatorship.

Do the people of this State wish to have sent to the United States Senate a man in sympathy with Mr. FENTON, to serve as that person's colleague? If they do not, they will elect a Republican Assembly. We all know that the allotment of the United States Senatorship was settled in the bargain by which the defeat of reform last Winter was accomplished, as a consideration for the support of GREELEY by the Democrats. We may be sure that with this clause of the bargain, FENTON took good care to be satisfied. Will what satisfies this notorious jobber in politics satisfy the people also? Will any tool or confederate of FENTON'S fairly represent the State of New-York? It is easy to see what sort of a position our State would have occupied in the Senate had it depended on FENTON—a man who can no more think like a statesman than he can speak like one, and whose highest conception of influence in a body like the Senate is "influence" in the traffic and dicker for offices.

Our State is, in some respects, the noblest in the Union. Certainly, she ought not to be disgraced in the Senate by another man even with the same general character as FENTON. Moreover, it would be keeping alive one of the worst elements of the coalition to give over the Senatorships in this State to its possession. Sure of its death in the Union, is it worth while to cherish that meanest fragment of it which originated in New-York?

Horse Doctors.

The epidemic among horses has given, in the eyes of the public, an unusual value to the services of persons skilled in treating the diseases of those useful animals. If this feeling shall prove in any degree permanent, the epidemic, with all its evils and inconveniences, will not be unproductive of benefit. The business of a "horse doctor" is one which ought not to be associated with the class of ideas which are frequently suggested by the term. There is no sort of reason in the nature of the employment itself why it should be spoken of in a tone of contempt. The amount invested in horses in the United States cannot, at a very moderate estimate, be less than seven or eight hundred million dollars. It would be impossible to say with any exactness what portion of this amount is annually lost by want of skillful medical treatment and nursing; but if we should put it at two per cent., or about fifteen million dollars, we think that men of experience and observation in the matter would unhesitatingly admit that we were entirely within bounds.

We should be very sorry indeed to disparage the skill and knowledge of the class of men in this business who have carefully and studiously given it their thorough and earnest attention. But we fear that this class is not by any means a large proportion of the whole number. The great majority of "horse doctors" throughout the country are, unless our observation be an exceedingly unfortunate one, nothing more nor less than a set of ignorant quacks, who generally do the poor beasts little good, and often a great deal of harm. As for anything like a scientific knowledge of the anatomy and physiology of the animal, many of them have so little idea of even the meanings of these two words, that it would excite in them no surprise if told that the former was a patent bandage, and the latter a new kind of medicine. A plain farmer can generally do better by attending, according to the best of his own ability, to the ailments of his horses, than by employing such "horse doctors" as most of those in the rural districts. But the loss of a horse to such a farmer is often a very serious matter. A good farm horse, now, is frequently worth from two to three hundred dollars; and a man who could give really valuable advice, in case of such a horse being dangerously sick, would be an exceedingly useful individual, and one to whom the owner of the animal could well afford to pay a fair compensation.

Attention to the diseases of the lower animals is, no doubt, of infinitely less consequence than curing the maladies of human beings; but we do not see why it should be regarded as a matter of inferior dignity to finding remedies for the diseases of the vegetable creation. No scientific man considers it beneath him to inquire into the causes of the potato rot, or the blighting of a wheat crop. The preservation of the health of domestic animals is, even apart from considerations of humanity in the relief of suffering to the beasts themselves, an exceedingly important thing in a pecuniary point of view. And besides this, the study of the best means for preserving the health of the lower animals often develops facts and principles of no slight value in reference to the health of the human system. Some of the most serious diseases to which man is subject are found in amazingly near the same form in horses, and need essentially the same treatment.

We think that the whole subject of the diseases of domestic animals has received too little of the attention of scientific men. And we are convinced, also, that individuals who wish to study those diseases, with a view to making themselves useful, and earning a living, should have better opportunities for obtaining thorough information in regard to them than they now possess. We know of no field for the practical application of sciences which has hitherto been so much neglected; and we are persuaded that a proper attention to the matter would repay the community fully ten-fold for all the expense that would need to be laid out upon it.

THE EMPIRE STATE.

The Home of Greeleyism—Defection from Republicanism—Made Good by Democratic Accession—An Active Canvass.

FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.

SYRACUSE, Saturday, Oct. 26, 1872.

There is a delight in the experiences of the last few days which I had vainly sought during eight months of political traveling for the TIMES. I have at last found a place where Liberal Republicanism is admitted, and having at last found the thing face to face, it is so very much like Democracy that I am forced to the conclusion that I may have encountered it hundreds of times before, and passed it by without recognition. This bustling city, with innumerable freight-trains on the Central Road, constantly dividing it it twain by universal consent, contains more of Liberal Republicanism than any other city in the State, with the exception of the Metropolis. Here lives Tom Alvord, who has made Republicanism pay him a handsome dividend these many years; here is Gen. H. A. Barnum, who has gathered political knowledge and morality at the feet of Reuben E. Fenton; here is Frank Hiscock, who paraded his merits in vain for appreciation in the party to which he pretended to belong from convention; and here is that exceedingly scarce article, a Republican newspaper swallowing its former professions by supporting Greeley and Gratz. These men, with many others of lesser note, and this newspaper, are assumed to have innumerable followers, and certainly have carried off a large fragment of the Republican Party with them, so that on a first glance it appears that the old Republican Party of Onondaga County, which has been so steadfast in years gone by for freedom and humanity, has at last fallen on evil days, and is disintegrated and helpless just when it should be most compact and strongest.

But upon an analysis of the situation this view entirely disappears. It is useless to deny that many who were formerly active in the Republican Party in Onondaga have gone over to the enemy, and that some of them are not of the Alvord stripe, but sincere men, acting from honest convictions, who did good service when with us and whom the party would be glad to have with it again. But valuable as they were, greatly as their apostasy is regretted, their secession has not been fatal or even hurtful to the party they have deserted. The place of every deserter has been more than filled by accessions from the Democratic camp, which here, where most needed, have been, for several reasons, more numerous than anywhere else in the State. Syracuse is largely dependent for her prosperity upon manufacturing industries, and so clearly do the people see that these are fostered by Republican principles and crippled by Democratic policy, that hundreds of working men who have heretofore been Democrats or indifferent in politics, have publicly and unequivocally given in their adhesion to the Republican Party. I do not count so largely upon these accessions as do many of the local Republican leaders, but it is safe to say that they have more than made good the places of those Republicans who have gone over to Greeley and Kernan. The names of former Democrats to this extent are upon the rolls of Grant Clubs, and while it is probable some of them may vote for Kernan and Democratic candidates for Congress, Assembly, and county offices, there are an equal number of Republicans who will vote for Greeley and for Republican nominees for all other places. One such I met on the cars who was earnestly indignant because called a Democrat, saying Greeley declares himself as good a Republican as ever. As he did not intend to vote for Kernan, my companion was convinced he himself is still in the fold of the party. He spoke of others who had like intentions, and I am convinced by what I have seen during the past five days all through Central New-York that the various contradictions of the political condition of the State will by no means appear from the election returns. One will about balance another, and the returns will be very nearly what they have been in former years in most localities, but they will be made up of very different materials. Throughout the State there will be thousands of Democrats found voting the whole Republican ticket for the first time, other thousands of Republicans voting the entire Democratic ticket, and other thousands of both voting for Grant or Greeley, and remaining steadfast to their party in respect to State and local nominations. I have heard the results of careful canvasses made in nearly all the counties of Central New-York, and find that while they clearly indicate these facts they also show that Gen. Grant will lead all Republican tickets, and that the party, as to all its nominations, was never stronger in the State during late years than it is today. Its capacity to repeat its sweeping victory of last year is fully demonstrated, and it is the universal testimony that it was never more energetic, never more hopeful, than now.

It is impossible to give an adequate idea of the vigor with which the Republican campaign is being waged throughout the State under the direction of Hon. A. B. Cornell, Chairman of the State Committee. The meetings which are announced daily in the TIMES are only a small portion of those being held, as in addition to these the candidates for Congress in the several districts, for the Assembly and the county offices, are constantly addressing the people, and hundreds of meetings are held daily of which no public mention is ever made, except in the local Press. In addition to all these meetings a personal canvass is being made in the townships of many of the counties, under the supervision of the County Committees, and ample precautions being already taken to have every Republican voter at the polls. The great mass-meetings in the chief towns which become known to the public are, in themselves, sufficient to declare intense activity everywhere discernible in the Republican ranks. The splendid spectacle at Binghamton, of which I wrote in my last, was more than equaled afterward during Senator Wilson's tour, and especially at Rochester, on Thursday, where the demonstration was simply unequaled. That yesterday, in this city, was greatly marred by the cold Autumnal rain which fell throughout the day and night, almost without interruption, was still in the highest degree creditable to the indomitable energy and pluck of the Republicans of Onondaga. Despite the rain, three thousand people gathered in Hanover-square, and stood there over two hours, although many of them were entirely exposed to the weather, and none of them had better protection than that afforded by umbrellas. It was cruelty to Senator Wilson to ask him to speak under such circumstances, but the people would have him, and having been introduced by Hon. D. G. Mitchell, the noble old warrior of Republicanism, stood out upon the edge of the platform, where the rain dripped upon his bare head, and made one of the best speeches he has delivered during the campaign. It was at the cost of his voice, however, for when, at its conclusion, he hastened to Burton's Opera-house, a few rods away, to make another speech to another crowd fully as large, which had been meantime entertained by Gen. Adam E. King, he was so hoarse that he could scarcely make himself heard. All this occurred in the afternoon, and early in the evening the opera-house was again filled. Senator Wilson spoke again, but briefly, and was followed by Hon. B. G. Noble, Gen. King and Hon. A. W. Tenney. At the conclusion of the meeting came the grand torch-light procession, containing over two thousand torches and many unique devices, which wound through the rain over the prescribed route. And all this the Courier, of this morning, calls the "big fizzle." If the Greeleyites can draw comfort from the demonstration they are welcome, as it was entirely satisfactory, considering all the circumstances, to such exacting Republicans as Hon. Carroll E. Smith, Hon. David J. Mitchell, Hon. George N. Kennedy, Dwight B. Bruce, Hon. George Raynor, Hon. W. H. H. Gere, and other zealous workers in the cause, who are determined that Onondaga shall do better than ever before, on Tuesday week.

While Syracuse was thus manifesting her faith under such extreme difficulties, fifty miles away another equally inspiring scene was witnessed, in the City of Utica. A simple announcement that Senator Conkling would speak in the opera-house was sufficient to pack that building to its utmost capacity at an early hour. The meeting being organized by the choice of Hon. Samuel Campbell as Chairman, and the appointment of several Vice-Presidents, Senator Conkling delivered one of those masterly orations which have done so much to enlighten the public mind during the present campaign. Before he concluded, the indefatigable Senator Wilson, who had hunted thither from this city, where he had spoken at 7 o'clock, appeared on the stage, and, being introduced by Senator Conkling, made a brief speech, being his fourth for the day. This occasion at Utica was simply a meeting promptly called and without preparation, but it was, nevertheless, and despite the unpropitious weather, one of the most notable affairs of the campaign in that locality.

All this may be stale news when it reaches you, but I have grouped these few facts for the purpose of showing what an exceedingly lively corpse is that Republican Party of New-York, which the Greeleyites have declared again and again, during the present canvass, to be dispirited and dead. I may add, as further evidence to the same effect, and as pertinent testimony to a point of great present interest, that there has been no falling off in energy since the October elections, and that, generally speaking, the party is in no danger of losing the battle from over-confidence. There are some individuals, of course, who imagine that the victory being already won, further effort is unnecessary, but after having made careful inquiry on this point, in a score of counties, I am sure that there is no great danger from this source. I have, myself, seen the party fully alive and hard at work in Otsego, Broome, Cortland, Onondaga, Albany and Oneida, and I have heard of it as being the same in all the adjacent territory. Every Republican feels certain of carrying the State, but every one feels anxious that the majority under which Greeleyism is to be buried in its fancied stronghold shall be as large as possible, and nearly every one is working strenuously to that end. With this spirit animating the party, and with the demoralization which is plainly apparent in the Democratic ranks, the future seems secure.

I find I must correct my Assembly lists. Before making a thorough investigation of Onondaga I thought it possible the Democrats might elect one member, and therefore, to be entirely on the safe side, allowed them one in the estimate which I made. I am assured, however, that no one of the mongrel candidates for the Assembly in this county will come within five hundred votes of an election, and I am satisfied that such is the fact. On the other hand there is some danger now that Littlejohn may succeed in defeating Hon. Daniel G. Fort in Oswego. The district is quite close, and Littlejohn is appealing so adroitly to local prejudices that he may deceive a sufficient number of Republicans into his support to insure his election. The Democratic Party is endeavoring to make some headway in the Assembly fight in some of the counties by dragging in the Senatorial question, and Littlejohn used it without scruple on a recent occasion, but I find the Republicans generally intent upon securing the Assembly without discussing this issue, and this last device of the Greeleyites to distract their ranks will be without effect. E. C.

COMMITTEE OF SEVENTY.

The Programme for the Coming Election—A List of the Candidates.

The Committee of Seventy, at their meeting on Saturday evening, determined upon a vigorous campaign for the election of good men to Municipal offices. On the assurances of Emil Sauer, D. Willis James, Joseph Seligman, George W. Lane, and Benjamin B. Sherman, Finance Committee, that the funds of the Committee were ample, it was resolved to print tickets and run boxes, as in the last election. The Council of Political Reform, German American Reform, Young Men's Mercantile Reform Associations, and kindred organizations, as well as the Market Men's Association, have volunteered to man the Committee's boxes and distribute tickets to voters on election day.

A report of Mr. John Foley, of the Committee appointed to consider the practicability of this arrangement, was read by Major J. M. Bundy.

The Committee of Arrangements consists of John Wheeler, Chairman; Oswald Ottendorfer, John Foley, Geo. W. Lane, Henry N. Beers, and J. M. Bundy. The names of the several candidates of the various political parties thus far indorsed by the Committee of Seventy are: Mayor, Wm. F. Havemeyer; Judge of the Supreme Court, Noah Davis; Judge of the Superior Court, Hooper C. Van Vorst; City Judge, Josiah Sutherland; Coroner, Adolph Kessler; District-Attorney, Benjamin K. Phelps. Mr. Higgins for Assembly and John Ham for Assistant Alderman, both of the First Assembly District, also received the indorsement of the Committee on Elections; Mr. Wheeler, Chairman, remarking that the Committee had been at a loss for nominees in that locality.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE OF FIFTY.

The political parties have presented for the consideration of the Committee, many objectionable lists of candidates for the Assembly, Aldermen, and Assistant Aldermen. They have decided to make their selections principally from the lists presented by the Executive Committee of the Committee of Fifty, on Saturday evening last. The Committee of Fifty was appointed Sept. 23, at the Cooper Union mass-meeting of the Council of Political Reform, People's Municipal Reform Association, German-American Central Reform Association, and others, and at which William Cullen Bryant presided. They have been laboring, under the encouragement of the Committee of Seventy, to prepare a local ticket which will meet with the approbation of good citizens of all parties. The list of candidates presented by Gen. James G. Jackson, and Jno. R. Voorhees, on behalf of the Committee of Fifty, is as follows:

ASSEMBLY.

Dist.	Dist.
1. S. J. Ruggles, Rep.	12. Jas. Kelly, Ind. Rep.
4. John C. Rapp, Rep.	14. Robt. B. Roosevelt, Rep.
7. Geo. W. Clarke, Rep.	15. J. B. Blumenthal, Tam.
8. Solon B. Smith, Rep.	16. J. R. Vermum, Lib. Rep.
10. O. Wheeler, Ind. Rep.	19. James Montejo, Dem.
11. Alex. S. Cornell, Rep.	20. Wm. S. Opdyke, Rep.
12. Fred. W. Hahn, Rep.	21. Charles Crary, Tam.

ALDERMEN.

Of the present Board of Aldermen, a report favorable to the election for a second term of the following-named gentlemen was made:

Peter Gilsey, Jenkins Van Schaick, John Faulkner, S. B. H. Vance, and Wm. Sachs.

In addition to the above were recommended David M. Koehler, Apollo Hall; Robert G. Cornell, Market Mens' Association; Dr. Samuel Hall, Council of Political Reform; Wm. Gardner, a Democrat; Geo. Henken, Jr., Geo. Bothmann; Frederick German, Apollo Hall; Hiram Stanly, Addison Smith and Henry Clawson.

ASSISTANT ALDERMEN.

The Committee have also recommended the following list of candidates for Assistant Aldermen:

Dist.	Dist.
1. Jno. Heath, Dem.	8. Capt. W. P. Bessel A.H.
2. F. Leggat, Dem.	10. Co. J. Leichot, Rep.

Judge Spaulding was before the Committee to urge the claims of Joseph Meunheimer, Apollo Hall nomination, and the Committee appeared to be favorably impressed.

There is but little doubt but that the candidates recommended by the Committee of Fifty will be reported as indorsed by the Seventy tomorrow evening. Proper candidates for the Assembly in the Second, Third, Fourth, Fifth, Ninth, Seventeenth and Eighteenth Districts, and for Assistant Aldermen in the Third, Eleventh, Twelfth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, Seventeenth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth and Twenty-first Districts have not yet been suggested by the Committee of Fifty.

Amusements—Announcements and Notes.

"Il Trovatore" is to be sung at the Academy of Music this evening, with Miss Kellogg, Señorita Sanz and Signori Abrugnedo and Moriani in the leading rôles. Mme. Lucca will be heard in "La Favorita" on Wednesday.... "The Road to Ruin" is to be acted this evening at the Fifth-avenue Theatre.... At Wood's Museum, Miss Zoe will to-night commence an engagement. She will appear in "The Angel of Midnight." The burlesque representation of last week is to constitute the attraction of each afternoon performance.... Mr. Edmund Yates will deli

THE HORSE DISEASE.

The Epidemic Still Spreading in this City and Vicinity.

Fatal Cases Increasing in the Car and Livery-Stables.

Great Interruption of Travel on the Railroad Lines.

Contrary to the general expectation, the omens of New-York were spared, for a while at least, the experience of a people wholly dependent on the horse-cars. The street-cars, it is true, did not run with one-half their usual frequency and regularity, and on more than one line did not run at all, but by a judicious arrangement of their forces and in many instances by forcing their willing but weak steeds, the leading lines were enabled to transport a considerable portion of their usual Sunday passengers, probably all to whom traveling was actually necessary. The working-men with their wives and families crowded into every car that came along, and the less reputable denizens of the lower wards of the City forced their way in too. Those who were compelled to travel would have had a hard time of it, had not the railroad companies held out better than was anticipated early in the day. The "upper ten," or those who usually attend fashionable churches in coaches of their own, either walked it, or, if fortunate enough, secured a place in the cars, and in the afternoon commingled with the moving throng on the up-town avenues, while lower down in the City every thoroughfare was crowded by pedestrians. Nobody wished to be stationary lest it should be surposed that staying at home was a necessary consequence of the lessening of traveling facilities; so every one turned out for a walk, if not for a ride, and it is probable that the absence of the usual number of cars did not make so great a difference after all.

In Brooklyn it was understood that all the cars would be hauled off, and the quiet City of Churches made up its mind to meet the emergency by going to the nearest church and keeping near home during the rest of the day, but the railroad people changed their minds, and those who wished to go succeeded in getting from one part of the city to another by their usual conveyance, but not without the same crowding and delay as on this side of the river.

It is futile to attempt at present any estimate of the probable results of the epidemic. Everything is in doubt, and any prediction, except from a very high authority, must be regarded as mere guess-work, and advanced in the hope of realization, and not on logical basis. The veterinary surgeons of the City owns themselves unable to decide with any degree of certainty the character of the termination—whether it will be fatal in a majority of cases or whether, except in rare instances, the great mass of horses affected will survive. The opinions of the railroad officials and Superintendents are wholly based upon the condition of the particular stock under their supervision, as for instance, the Superintendent of an East-side line yesterday was of the opinion that the disease was "out of date in a week," while another, intrusted with the supervision of one of the West-side lines, gave it as his opinion that before another week there would not be a hundred cars on the railroad lines of the entire City. These opinions are of course based on extremes, and were simply indications of the condition of the horses under the respective control of their authors.

The general condition of the horses throughout the City, unfortunately, cannot be said to have improved during yesterday, while from more deaths are now reported to have occurred among the animals affected with the epidemic, making a total of seven fatal cases at the car-stables. It is difficult to ascertain exactly the mortality at the livery-stables, but it is certain that several horses have died at these establishments since the appearance of the disease. The proprietors claim that death has been caused by other diseases, but in one or two instances the contrary is known to be the case. At any rate the livery-stable-keepers, as a general rule, are doing their best to make it appear that their stock does not suffer dangerously from the epidemic.

The street cars continued running all night on Saturday, as usual, on most of the lines, and yesterday morning efforts were made to run the cars on full time, but before noon the attempt was given up and the horses were worked at fair average. The horses appeared to leave the depots strong enough for the trip, but before the lower section of the route was reached they began to drag wearily, and in many instances gave out altogether on the up trip. Whenever this occurred the car was stopped and the broken-down team led the rest of the way to the stables, and the car carried to its destination by the horses of the next car coming in the same direction. In this way delays were frequent, and some of the cars came as often as seven times during the trip. During the latter part of the evening the trips were reduced, but the cars continued to run at intervals during the night. Today, on all the lines, further reductions will be made, and not more than half the usual number of cars will run. The horse-cars will take the road again with a reduced force—probably less than two-thirds their usual number.

Business promises to remain, today, in about the same condition as on Saturday, the further spread of the epidemic being counteracted by the respite which the horses received yesterday, with a probably increased activity on the part of the express companies.

The Second-avenue line ran about two-thirds the usual number of cars yesterday. No deaths are reported here.

At the Third-avenue stables two more deaths are reported. Fifty trips were taken off yesterday, and material reductions are contemplated for today. The Grand Central Depot branch of this line will run its full number of cars today.

The Fourth-avenue line closed up yesterday, with the exception of four cars, which were run in the morning and evening to connect with the railroad trains. Today half the usual number of cars will be run.

The Sixth-avenue line withdrew its Canal-street and Broadway cars, and ran half the usual number to Vesey-street. Today the same proportion will be retained on both portions of the line. Forty horses were yesterday added to the number in hospital, and one died, making the second fatal case at this stable. The others were generally in a better condition.

At the stables of the Broadway and Seventh-avenue lines, where it is difficult to ascertain the true state of affairs, several new cases appeared, but no deaths were reported. On the two lines forty-five or half the usual number of cars were run. Today the same proportion will be maintained, while the Broome-street branch will be withdrawn.

On Eighth-avenue forty cars were run, Today one-half the usual number will be on the road. One of the horses taken on Tuesday died yesterday, and twenty-seven were added to the hospital stalls.

Following the example of the others, the Belt line will withdraw one-third of its cars to-day. Yesterday the line ran on half time, and several new cases of the epidemic appeared.

The Ninth-avenue will probably resume today. The Avenue B and Bleecker-street lines ran part of the day yesterday, but stopped as an early hour of the evening.

Should the weather be fine, the Twenty-third-street line will resume today. The Fourteenth-street Cross-town line is yet undecided as to resuming. The Madison-avenue line will run forty-three instead of sixty-six stages, and the Fourth-avenue line will run all but thirteen. The Fifth-avenue line will also run part of its force during the day. The horses at the stables of the stage companies appeared to be greatly benefited by the day's rest yesterday.

The prevalence of the disease among the trotters has caused the postponement of several trots, which had been arranged for this week. The three days' meeting at Hall's Driving Park has been postponed until November.

Official Returns.

The Police yesterday morning, reported the following casualties among the plague-stricken horses in this City:

Five dead horses in the Eighteenth Precinct, owned by F. H. Seldes, No. 209 East Twenty-third-street; Richard Stafford, No. 354 East Twenty-seventh-street; John Duffy, No. 351 East Eighteenth-street; Patrick McNally, No. 419 First-avenue, and Dennis O'Connor, of No. 341 East Twenty-first-street. Two dead horses at the Third-avenue depot, Sixty-sixth-street, and two at the stables of the Grand Central line, at Third-avenue and Thirty-fourth-street. Dead horses were also reported at No. 97 Wooster-street, No. 100 Hoestie-street, at the corner of Gansevoort and South streets, at No. 6 First-street, No. 341 East Sixteenth-street, No. 56 Second-avenue, No. 19 Monroe-street, No. 254 Cherry-street, No. 23 Clinton-street, No. 397 Third-avenue, No. 205 East Seventy-eighth-street, and at Sixty-seventh-street and Third-avenue.

The Disease in New-Jersey.

The horse disease appears to be increasing in Newark, Jersey City and Paterson, and to be extending to the cities in the lower part of the State. In Newark the horse-cars ceased running yesterday, and in Paterson not more than half the regular trips were made. From Trenton, Bordentown, Camden, New-Brunswick and other places, reports of the disease represent its spread to be most alarming.

The Horse Distemper in Brooklyn.

The tramp of horses was almost unheard yesterday in Brooklyn. The condition of the animals is reported improving. This was the case with the city railroad companies' stables. Only two Myrtle-avenue and Broadway cars were running, and these were crowded to suffocation. Some of the lines they climbed twice one of the cars. One conductor and he had twenty passengers on his car at one time; they were on top, hanging to the rear and front, clinging to handles, and even sitting inside windows. A person stood at a point in Fulton-street an hour without seeing a single horse. Still, in reply to inquiries, the men at the stables also favorable comments of their stock, and persons on cars were ignorant of the order of things.

The Horse Disease Considered Serious in Boston Convalescent.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 27.—The horse-railroad travel in Boston and vicinity was suspended today. Rain continues, and cases of horses unattacked by the distemper keep them sheltered for safety, and the horse is just now a rarity on the streets. Many of the animals first attacked are said to be convalescing, and it is believed that they have gone about over the worst of the visitation.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The horse disease has reached this city. In one stable of twelve horses, eleven are down with it. As yet, however, the disease is confined to that stable.

Introduction of Guess Processed.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Oct. 27.—H. G. Eastman, Mayor of Poughkeepsie, telegraphs as follows to the Press of New-York:

CITY OF POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., MAYOR'S OFFICE, Oct. 27.

If the extent and probable continuance of the horse plague warrant the freighting interests in New-York in employing oxen to move their merchandise. I have no doubt that a hundred or many more yoke of Dutchess County oxen with drivers could be sent by boat from this city, on short notice, that would satisfactorily take the place of horses in hauling large trucks and freight wagons, and I believe that such an arrangement could be made with our farmers and drivers for a fair compensation. My services in this matter are gratuitously at the disposal of those interested.

THE FOURTH WARD TRAGEDY.

Preliminary Examination by Coroner Herrman—Discharge of the Republican Prisoners—How Farrell Behaved under Examination.

The Fourth Ward Station-house was crowded yesterday morning by politicians of both the Brennan and Dowling factions, eagerly awaiting some official action in regard to the political tragedy at the corner of Water and Roosevelt streets, on Saturday night, by which Thomas Mangin, of No. 50 Cherry-street, was almost instantly killed, and several others wounded. Capt. Ulman and his officers are using every effort to discover the really guilty parties, and have hopes of success. Alderman Coman was present in the Station-house yesterday morning, and expressed a hope that the investigation would result in the arrest of the guilty persons. He, he was confident, did not believe it was a political party. Patrick Farrell, keeper of the den at the corner of Roosevelt and Water streets, the chimney of which was thrown down on the crowd in the street below, was called and examined by Coroner Herrman. His grave his evidence in a straightforward way, which completely disconcerted all the reputable persons present. He said "I did not cut down the Coman banner. I have too much principle to do such a thing." For a man who keeps one of the worst resorts for thieves in the City this was truly refreshing, and a person standing behind Farrell (remarked the latter of the easy adaptability of his conscience to circumstances. After this interlude Farrell continued his statement, and said: "While behind my bar, I was informed that some person was on my roof cutting down my banner; this was some minutes after the Coman banner had been cut down; I went up, and found a man named Carroll endeavoring to cut through the wire rope of my banner; I caught him, and said, 'For God sake, stop; you'll knock down the chimney, it's loose.' At this he put his foot against the chimney and pushed it over into the street; Yorke and Woogan and Haley, who were on the roof of the next house, which is a story higher than mine, pelted bricks at me, and, lowering a rope to Carroll, hauled him up."

Coroner HERRMAN—Then Doogan, and Yorke, and Haley were not upon your roof at the time the chimney was thrown down?

FARRELL—No, Sir; but they lowered a rope to Carroll and drew him up; they were accessories to the fact.

Coroner HERRMAN—You are not the judge of that question.

FARRELL (very insolently)—Well, I've said all I know; if you aren't satisfied, all right. He then walked away.

Capt. Ulman then produced Messrs. William C. Yorke, William Doogan and Daniel Haley. Yorke gave his occupation as keeper of liquor-store corner of Roosevelt and Water-street. Doogan said he was a boatman, living at No. 299 Water-street, and Haley gave his business as that of porter in No. 16 Beekman-street. They admitted being on the roof adjoining Farrell's house, and seeing Farrell and Carroll engaged in a dispute there, Carroll run away from Farrell, and they helped him up on their roof by means of a rope. While they were doing so, Carroll being twenty-feet away from the chimney and Farrel being close to it, the chimney fell, and they believed that Farrell himself threw it down. Coroner Herrman at once perceiving that Woogan, Yorke and Haley could not for a moment be detained as prisoners, discharged them, and announced that he would require a nominal bail for their appearance as witnesses. Alderman Coman became responsible for their appearance, and they left for their homes. The inquest in the case will be held on Thursday morning next, at 10½ o'clock.

THE OLD JOHN-STREET CHURCH.

Celebration of the One Hundred and Fourth Anniversary of its Foundation—Interesting Services and Reminiscences.

Yesterday the Old John-street Methodist Church celebrated the one hundred and fourth anniversary of its establishment by special services, consisting of a love-feast or reunion of former pastors and general thanksgiving. The church was crowded, and many of the older members of the congregation came a long distance to take part in the services. This is the first Methodist Church formed in this City, and the the old church in Fulton-street has become known throughout the United States. The present edifice was built a few years ago, but there had been two previous buildings, which were pulled down to make way for a larger and more suitable place of worship. Many of the present congregation have been attached to the church for a great number of years, and are now ripe with old age. In former years they resided in the lower part of the City, and in the vicinity of the church, but now they are scattered in Brooklyn, Harlem, Hoboken, and other places.

Bishop Janes, who had promised to preach the anniversary sermon, was unable to be present. Dr. J. P. Newman, Chaplain of the United States Senate, Dr. Bartyne, Rev. Merwin, the pastor, Dr. Weld, and others, were present. The morning services consisted of a love-feast and a sermon by Dr. Newman. A numeor of gentlemen, during the service, gave an account of their conversion to the church, and told many interesting facts of their work with the Methodist cause. In the afternoon these experiences were repeated, but the principal feature was the purchase of life memberships of this church for Bishop Harris, Bishop Beaumont, Bishop Foster, Bishop Anderson, and others. These life memberships were secured for the sum of $100, and paid for in sums of $10 by the congregation, and in some instances by the children of the Sunday-school, each subscribing 48. The money thus raised is set apart for defraying the expenses of the church and the pastor. Altogether about $1,000 was raised. In the evening a general prayer-meeting was held.

Turf Notes—High-Priced Horses Disposed Of—General Items.

Mr. William M. Parkes, of Broad-street, and a leading member of the Prospect Park Fair Ground Association, has purchased from Mr. Charles Backman the three-year old colt Prospero, which trotted at the late meeting in the extraordinary time of 2:23¾, drawing seventy-five pounds overweight. The price paid was $20,000. Mr. Backman has breeding very profitable, when he can obtain Prospero, a Gazelle and a Starke for $60,000 each.

The horses which ran first, second and third for the Cambridge stakes this year were all outsiders in the betting, and the book-makers reaped a rich harvest.

The Prospect Park Fair Ground Association has opened two colt stakes for 1873. The first is for colts and fillies foaled in 1869, to be trotted in June, 1873, at the Spring Meeting; mile heats, best three in five, in harness; $150 each, $50 at the time of entrance and $100 on or before the 3d of June, when all will be play or pay. Of course, Prospero is barred from this stake. Two hundred and fifty dollars will be added to the stake by the Association. Two-thirds of the money goes to the winner, two-thirds of the balance to the second colt, and one-third to the third colt. The other stake is for foals of 1870, to be trotted in the Fall of 1873; mile and repeat, in harness; the other conditions the same as the preceding stake. The entries are to close Dec. 2, 1872.

Gen. Custer, United States Army, has purchased of W. J. Stanhope, jun., a Trustee, by imp. Boaster Scotland, out of Ada Cockburn, by Langton. The price paid was $3,300.

There is much feeling manifested between the owners of Gazelle and Judge Fullerton at the result of the second trot at Prospect Park. Mr. Humphreys claims, with reason, that he would have won the race had it not been postponed, and has offered a match of $5,000 a side to the owner of Gazelle, which the latter would not accept.

The match of $1,000 between the ch. f. Flush, by Hiawatha, out of Fanny Ryan, by imp. Australian, and the ch. f. Dixie, by imp. Australian, out of Dixie, by Sherman Morgan, to be run at Hackensack on the 5d November.

The trotted Chief Kellogg and Planter have been attacked with the horse disease at Rochester, N. Y.

WILLIAM H. SEWARD.

A Colored Man's Tribute to the Statesman—Rev. Henry H. Garnet's Address Last Evening.

At Shiloh Church, Prince-street, last evening, Rev. Henry Highland Garnett delivered an address on the life and character of the late William H. Seward. Taking for his text—"Know ye not that there is a prince and a great man fallen this day in Israel?"—2d Samuel, third chapter, thirty-eighth verse, Mr. Garnett said that since the death of Lincoln and Stanton, no American statesman has passed away whose death has produced a sorrow so deep and profound as that of William H. Seward. Statesmen honored him as their chief; scholars revered him as one of the brightest ornaments of their class; patriots esteemed him as a leader, true and ardent in the most perilous times through which the Republic has passed, and the poor and oppressed loved him as one of their most devoted friends; and as for us of the colored race, whose personal freedom he did so much to achieve, we mourn his loss as we would that of a brother or a father. The longer he remained on the earth, the stronger our remembrance of his generous deeds took root in our hearts. Gov. Seward was born in Orange County, N. Y., in 1801, coming upon the stage of action just about the time that many of his hearers were born. We are told that one of his parents was of Irish and one of Welsh descent. Many European nations have been charged in oppressing their fellow-man, and have endeavored to stamp on the tenets of God written upon the forehead of every human being, but I have never heard of a Welshman being engaged in the slave trade. Can it be wondered at, then, that this young man, with such blood running in his veins, found that every disposition of his heart went out toward human liberty? I recollect that Mr. Seward, while he was Governor, said these words to me: "Sir, I learned to hate slavery in my father's kitchen. With nine slaves always near me I saw the debasing effects of the system, and I resolved that when I came to manhood, whatever power I possessed I would use to destroy it." At a later period he said: "I mean always to keep ahead of public opinion on the question of slavery. As sure as you live you will see this system blotted out from the land." I did not believe it at the time, but I see it an accomplished fact, thank God, now. Seward had the eye and the faith of a prophet. He graduated at college in 1820. At twenty-nine years of age he was in the Senate, and at thirty-three, Governor of the State of New-York. It was while he was Governor that I called upon him with a message from the colored people, who were deprived of the right of suffrage, no black man being allowed to vote who was not possessed of $250 worth of real estate. Gov. Seward said he would do the best he could, but there was a prejudice in the minds of people upon the subject which he had to combat. In his message to the Legislature he called upon it to take some notice of the request of the "unfortunate citizens" of our State, and when it was read, that word "unfortunate" passed into a proverb of the time. Mr. Garnett referred to Mr. Seward as a lawyer who always appeared for a defendant, never for a plaintiff, and he never lost a woman; it was always in his opposition to the "Missouri Compromise," and to the case of the colored lad, William Freeman, of Cayuga County, who was defended by Seward. Freeman, though innocent, had been sent to jail, where he was so cruelly treated that he became insane. When he was released, liberated, fired with a spirit of revenge, he murdered a whole family. Everybody then deserted him but Seward, who appeared for his defense, and it was then that he used the words, "May it be written upon my monument, 'Here lies the friend of the black man.'" Mr. Garnett believed that Mr. Seward's children would never forget the request of their parent. He then touched lightly upon the fact that Secretary of State Seward had given the first passport to a black man who was visiting a foreign country, and prohibited the passport with his own hand—he spoke of it himself. It was dated Aug. 30, 1861. He alluded to the "irrepressible conflict" speech at Rochester; to the expression "a higher law" which Seward used while discussing the slavery question in the Senate; to his attempted reunion of the nation, his voyage at the age of seventy, round the world, and to his death at Auburn and burial at the beautiful cemetery of Oak Hill. We should remember William H. Seward, he said, in closing. I feel that I have now discharged a debt due to the great statesman and philanthropist, and I know that you will sympathize with me in laying this tribute upon his tomb.

Registration in Brooklyn—Corrected Table—Increase of More Than Ten Thousand Since Last Year.

A few returns from remote and minor districts in Brooklyn were received, yesterday morning, too late to be included in the table published in the TIMES of Sunday. These additional districts increase the total registry slightly. The increase since last year amounts to over 10,000, the vote then being, in round numbers, about 80,000. The Democratic majority on the State ticket in Kings County, last Fall, was somewhere in the neighborhood of 8,000. This year's registration shows an increase in every Republican ward, amounting in the aggregate to about 9,000 votes, while in the numerous Democratic wards the increase is but 3,000, from which must be deducted a decrease of 2,000 in four Democratic wards that have fallen off, leaving an actual increase of only about 1,000 votes in the entire patch of Democratic wards. The following is the corrected table of the registration Saturday, and on the three registering days previous. These figures are correct and the returns complete:

Ward.	Sept. 26.	Oct. 1.	Oct. 5.	Oct. 26.	Tot'l.
First	268	490	3.0	2.2	1341
Second	448	478	266	353	1745
Third	351	368	377	413	2105

REAL ESTATE TRANSACTIONS.

At the Exchange, on Saturday, Oct. 26, no sales were made, and business for the week closes with an exceedingly dull market. During the entire week but little activity has been evinced, and for the season of the year, the sales made are not only few, but unauspicious. The public auctions held at the Exchange, since our last report, have been wanting in interest, and the only one attracting special attention was that conducted by Muller, Wilkins & Co., on Thursday, Oct. 24, at which thirty-six villa plots, located on Fordham Heights, Westchester County, containing about 135 City lots, were sold for $17,195, an average of about $950 per lot. The property was considered cheap. The total value of City real estate, sold at the Exchange, for the week ending with Saturday, Oct. 26, amounts to only $171,856, as against the sum of $216,845, the figures for the previous week ending with Saturday, Oct. 12. All the sales made have been consummated under Court orders, the private conditions otherwise proposed having been failures. In suburban property no auctions have been held, the sale at Summit, N. J., on Tuesday, Oct. 22, having been stopped, owing to arrangements in progress for the sale of the lots advertised at private contract. The auctioneer engaged in business may be now said to be closed, and nothing further will be attempted in this line until next Spring. The interest of investors will therefore be confined to the Exchange auctions, and after the election we may look for greater activity, as several important auctions are already set down for November, which, should they result favorably, an influence will be exerted that will have a good effect upon the market generally.

SALES FOR THE PRESENT WEEK.

For this week the auctions thus far announced are few, and in no instance does the property to be sold call for special mention. The following is a list of the proposed transactions:

Today, Monday, Oct. 28.—Joseph McGuire will offer at the Exchange, under a Supreme Court decree in foreclosure, Frederick C. White, Esq., referee, eight lots, together forming a plot in size 100 by 99.11, situate on the north side of One Hundred and Forty-eighth-street, 250 feet east of the King's Bridge Road, or Bushwick Hill.

To-morrow, Tuesday, Oct. 29.—William Kennelly, at the Exchange, by order of the Supreme Court, M. T. Brennan, Esq., referee, will sell one lot, 25.6 by 100.6, on the south side of Eighty-eighth-street 184.5 feet east of Fourth-avenue; also, under a similar order, F. A. Oliver, Esq., referee, one lot, same size, adjoining above, 210 feet east of Fourth-avenue; upon this property are two small frame houses.

Wednesday, Oct. 30.—A. J. Bleecker, Son & Co., at a Supreme Court foreclosure sale, at the Exchange, Philo T. Ruggles, Esq., referee, will offer at auction the premises known as Nos. 10 and 12 Marion-street, west side, 102.9 feet north of Broome-street, embracing two lots, one 25 by 60, and the other 34.2 by 40.3, with buildings thereon; also, one lot, 17 by 102.2, on the south side of East Eighty-third-street, 254.2 feet east of Third-avenue. Joseph McGuire will also sell, at the Exchange, on Wednesday, under a similar Court order, John K. Goldsmith, Esq., referee, one lot, 20 by 100.11, on the north side of East One Hundred and Fifth-street, 300 feet east of Second-avenue.

Thursday, Oct. 31.—James M. Miller, at the Exchange, at an adjourned Supreme Court foreclosure sale, Charles A. Jackson, Esq., referee, will dispose of the three-story and basement brick house and lot, known as No. 238 West Twenty-eighth-street, north side, 275 feet east of Ninth-avenue, lot 25 by 98.9; and the lease of two brown-stone houses and lots adjoining, known as Nos. 233 and 233½ west Twenty-eighth-street, lots each 18.6 by 98.9. Gildersleeve & Weber, at another adjourned sale, under the direction of Alfred Erbe, Esq., receiver, will offer at auction two houses and lots, situate on the east side of First-avenue, between One Hundred and Twentieth and One Hundred and Twenty-first streets, the lots together forming a plot 50.8 by 100. The adjourned legal sale, under the direction of Geo. L. Ingraham, Esq., referee, of Winans, Sand & Garrettson, auctioneers, of the block of thirty-eight lots, bounded by Second and Third avenues, One Hundred and First and One Hundred and Second streets, is also again set down for Thursday; but the property, it is not expected, will be sold, as the suit involving its disposition will probably be settled.

Friday, Nov. 1.—Muller, Wilkins & Co., by order of the Supreme Court in foreclosure, under the direction of Henry R. Beeckman, Esq., referee, at the Exchange, will dispose of a house and lot on West One Hundred and Thirty-third street, 100 feet west of Seventh-avenue. Lot, 20 by 99.11.

Saturday, Nov. 2.—James M. Miller, at an adjourned Supreme Court foreclosure sale, C. E. Phelps, Esq., referee, will offer at public auction, at the Exchange, six houses and lots, three each on West Forty-third and Forty-fourth streets, respectively, (rear adjoining,) 225 feet west at Tenth-avenue, together forming a plot in size 75 by 200.10.

This transaction will close the business of the week.

FINANCIAL.

INDIANAPOLIS, BLOOMINGTON
AND
WESTERN RAILWAY.
The Short Central Trunk Route,

This road has been in operation from Indianapolis to Peoria, 162 miles, for two years. Its earnings have rapidly increased, and are now already sufficient to pay all current expenses, interest on all its Bonded Indebtedness, including that issued for its Extension, and, in addition, a dividend upon its Stock.

The Extension is 217 miles in length, and connects Champaign with the Mississippi River at Keokuk. It passes through a well-developed part of the State of Illinois, abounding in resources for a great business, and it uses in a short time equal in receipts the other part of the Road with which it is consolidated, making a total line of 420 miles. Intimate western connections make this route the most direct between the Atlantic and Pacific Coasts.

The entire road traverses a very fertile region, and possesses the best subsidy a road can have, viz.: IMMENSE BUSINESS IMMEDIATELY AT COMMAND.

Under a late valuation, the property of the older part of the road, above prior obligations, is fully equal in amount to the Bonds now issued, which are further and completely secured by a first and only mortgage on the extension, one-half of which is near completion, and the remainder will be finished early in 1873.

The Bonds are Seven Per Cent. Gold, $1,000 each, convertible into stock at par at the option of the owner, and may be registered without charge. PRICE 90 AND ACCRUED INTEREST in currency. Coupons, January and July 1, free of tax.

We recommend the Bonds to all classes of investors as an undoubted security.

THE MAYORALTY.

Complete Canvass of the City by Our Own Reporters.

Drift of Public Sentiment in the Several Wards.

The Germans for Havemeyer and the Irish for O'Brien.

Lawrence, the Tammany Candidate, Third in the Race.

Probable Success of the Republican-Reform Nominee.

In order to ascertain as near as possible the feeling in the different Wards of this City on the Mayoralty question, we have had the island thoroughly canvassed by a select corps of our own reporters. Their reports, herewith appended, will be found interesting, and we believe they give a fair idea of the present strength of the several candidates in the field.

FIRST WARD.

The First Ward, bounded by the North and East Rivers on each side, and embracing that portion of the City below Liberty-street, will give Lawrence, the Tammany candidate, a majority of about 1,600. The balance of power is wielded by John Fox and Judge Hogan. Nicholas Muller, Ex-Coroner Flynn, and John Moore are the adherents of O'Brien. The Ward has a large Irish vote, which is in the greater part controlled by Fox, while the sailor and emigrant boarding-houses over which Muller and Moore hold sway, do not count up a formidable array of voters. Moore, Muller, and Flynn seem to be only beginning their canvass now, while their opponents have been working like beavers for the last month.

SECOND WARD.

The Second Ward is bounded by Liberty-street, Broadway, Park-row, Spruce-street, Ferry-street, Peck-slip, and the East River. It will give a very small majority, probably fifty, for Lawrence. The vote is principally composed of janitors and persons living in a few boarding and tenement-houses in the precinct, and is almost wholly Democratic.

THIRD WARD.

The Third Ward, embracing that portion of the City bounded by Broadway, Liberty and Reade streets to the North River, will in all probability give a majority of from 50 to 100 for Lawrence. The smallness of the majority will be attributable solely to the efforts of the Republicans in the Ward, who will poll their full vote solid for Havemeyer. In fact, the influence of the present Assemblyman, James Healy, who last election carried the Assembly District by 1,200 majority, and which is now stronger than then, will suffice to defeat O'Brien.

FOURTH WARD.

The Fourth Ward embraces all of that district lying between Spruce and Ferry streets on the south, and Catharine-street on the north, running up from the East River to Chatham-street and Printing-house-square. From the present political aspect of the Ward, James O'Brien will have a majority for Mayor. He is supported by Alderman Thomas Coman, while Lawrence, the Tammany candidate, has for his partisans Billy Walsh, a brother of Fatty Walsh, beside Jeremiah Murphy and others of that ilk. The legal vote of this Ward is about 2,300, not more. Under the old Tammany machinery the Ward has returned a total vote of 5,600; it will not do so at the ensuing election. There is a Republican vote of about 400 solid for Grant, Wilson and Dix; but of whom the Irish portion, numbering about 200, will vote for O'Brien. The Tammany ticket will suffer heavily from the enforcement of the new Election law, owing to loss of naturalization papers, and the fact that under the old régime the sailor boarding-houses turned out at least 300 sailors, who, this year, will not vote this time. Again, a large number of the Irish Tammany voters will not support Lawrence in preference to O'Brien, and when to this is added the fact that Walsh, except from his connection with Sheriff Matt. Brennan, has no great individual strength in the Ward, it is but fair to presume that O'Brien will carry it.

FIFTH WARD.

The Fifth Ward lies between Broadway and the North River, and is bounded on the south by Reade-street and on the north by Canal. In this Ward the contest for the Mayoralty will be close, with the probability of O'Brien having a majority of 100 or 200. The German vote is solid for Havemeyer, and when added to the usual Republican vote, (about 400,) will draw off enough from the Democratic Tammany vote, out of the 2,200 legal votes in the Ward, to leave the chances in O'Brien's favor.

SIXTH WARD.

This Ward is bounded by Chambers-street and Tryon-row on the south, by Chatham-street and the Bowery as far as Canal on the east, by Canal on the north, and Broadway on the west. The Sixth Ward will also go for O'Brien by a small majority. The question is not one of the Mayoralty, but of the members of Assembly for the district. James Dunphy against Denis Burns, the member from Sligo, Justice Dowling supporting Dunphy, while Sheriff Brennan lends his influence to Burns, as in the Fourth Ward, the loss of repeaters will cause a large falling off in the Tammany vote, and the little Republican vote will divide the ticket so as to materially favor O'Brien, having an increased majority. The residing classes of the ward, Italian organ-grinders and other naturalized citizens, who control the vote, seem in favor of Mr. O'Brien, and a large portion of the Irish vote, which predominates, is for him. Leaving out the question of the fight between the local politicians, the general impression is that under any auspices Mr. O'Brien's strength is far beyond that of any other candidate opposed to him.

SEVENTH WARD.

This Ward lies between the East River and Division-street, and is bounded on the north by Grand-street, and on the south by Catharine. The vote is divided between Lawrence and O'Brien nearly equally, it being expected that each candidate will carry about 2,500 out of the 4,000 or 7,000 votes that the Ward will poll. It is estimated that Havemeyer will poll from 1,200 to 1,400 votes, and the small remainder may be cast for either of the other candidates. The O'Brien interest is supported by Bagley, Coroner Keenan, John Galvin, and Bryan Reilly, all of whom have heretofore been identified strongly with Tammany. The principal supporters of Lawrence are Shandley and Blain, who are making strong efforts to bring out the whole vote of the Ward.

EIGHTH WARD.

The Eighth Ward is bounded on the south by Canal-street, on the east by Broadway, on the north by Houston, and on the west by the North River. Havemeyer, as matters now stand, will have a majority of from 300 to 400 in the Ward. The two prominent Democratic officials are fighting tooth and nail against each other—Senator Mike Norton to secure the member of Assembly for the district, and Police Justice Cox to defeat Norton. In their anxiety to cook each other's political goose, they have not pronounced in favor of any candidate for Mayor. Theodore Allen, with Pete Mitchell, controlled the Apollo Hall Committee of the Ward, which favored James O'Brien. Allen, finding that Mitchell had sold out to Tammany for the Tammany Assistant District-Attorneyship, attempted up the Apollo Hall General Committee, and cut of eighty-four delegates, took sixty with him to the Republican camp. The negro vote of the Ward numbers 1,050, who are solid for Havemeyer, as are also the majority of the German voters. The regular white Republican vote, added to this, will give Havemeyer a decided majority.

NINTH WARD.

The Ninth Ward is bounded north by West Fourteenth-street, south by West Houston-street, east by Sixth-avenue, Bleecker, Carmine, and Macdougal streets, and west by the Hudson River. Much general interest in the result of the balloting on the 6th prox. is manifested in the Ward, and as the day upon which the issue will be determined approaches enthusiasm increases. The head quarters of the local Republicans is at Jefferson House, corner of Hudson and Christine streets, and there the situation is daily and nightly canvassed. The adherents of O'Brien are emphatic in their claims of his victory, and are working energetically in his behalf. They assert that he will poll a very large vote, and will assuredly succeed in taking a large majority. On the other hand, the friends and supporters of Havemeyer claim the Ward in large numbers. The Ward only differs in a political sense from most all others. It is very clear of the professional element, and a great majority of its residents are moneyed men, who do much toward making up the taxes, and who have, therefore, a decided interest in reform. Large numbers of these voters freely support Mr. Havemeyer, and will lend him all the aid they can command.

TENTH WARD.

The Tenth Ward is bounded by Division-street on the south, Norfolk-street on the east, Rivington-street on the north, and the Bowery on the west. The voters in this Ward are mainly Germans, and they will give from 5,000 to 6,000 votes. The feeling of the citizens is mostly in favor of Havemeyer, but the supporters of O'Brien being partially allied with the Germans, and Apollo Hall having nominated C. Guesman for Alderman, that may have the effect of drawing off a few of the votes. As the feeling of the people now stands, this Ward will give from 4,500 to 5,000 for Havemeyer, from 600 to 1,000 for O'Brien, and about 1,000 for Lawrence, who is supported by Judge Scott, Warden Tracy, Ed. Ehlert, and others. A small balance remains of the voters that may be changed either way by local influences, without regard to the general issue.

ELEVENTH WARD.

The Eleventh Ward has Rivington-street on the south, the East River on the east, East Fourteenth-street on the north, and Avenue B and Clinton-street on the west. This Ward will give from 5,000 to 6,000 votes, as every vote will be brought out that can be secured. The local issues, arising partially from the nomination by Tammany of a resident for a County office, has divided the voters on the Mayoralty question. Charles E. Loew, Henry Wollman, and W. W. Cook supporting Lawrence, while the Germans are going for Havemeyer. The other Democratic adherents to Tammany, including Ed. Mare, Patrick Reilly, and others, appear to be working for O'Brien. This Ward will doubtless give O'Brien from 1,300 to 1,500 votes, while Lawrence will obtain from 1,600 to 2,000, and Havemeyer the balance, giving him a handsome majority.

TWELFTH WARD.

This Ward comprises all of that district lying between the East and North Rivers, above Eighty-sixth-street, the greater part being sparsely inhabited, excepting that portion known as Harlem. A large proportion of the voters in this Ward are Irish, and will, it is believed, vote strongly for O'Brien, though the Germans, who are also in full strength, will support Havemeyer, so that of the 2,000 legal votes in the Ward these two candidates will take the lion's share. Lawrence, the Tammany candidate, does not find much favor, as he is unpopular with the working classes. At present the prospect is, that, owing to the split in the Democratic vote, Havemeyer will carry the Ward by a decided plurality. Last Fall the Republican vote of the Twelfth Ward was 2,074, and the Democratic vote being divided, therefore, it should now be safe for Havemeyer.

THIRTEENTH WARD.

The Thirteenth Ward is bounded by Division and Grand streets on the south, the East River on the east, Rivington-street on the north, and Norfolk-street on the west. The legitimate vote of this Ward at the next election is set down at 4,800, although at former elections it has given over 6,000. This time such a vote is not looked for. A local disruption is likely also to affect the Mayoralty ticket, as Lawrence is supported by Tim Campbell and Assistant Alderman Michael Healey, who have greatly lost their popularity in the Ward, while O'Brien has Tony Miller, Pat. Farley, and other dissatisfied Tammany Hall men. The union of parties on the Assembly candidate has also had the tendency of confusing opinions with regard to the Mayor, and the nomination of Fred. Germain as Alderman by Apollo Hall may also divide the Teutonic vote. From present prospects the Ward will give from 2,000 to 2,500 for Lawrence, the balance being nearly equally divided between Havemeyer and O'Brien.

FOURTEENTH WARD.

The Fourteenth Ward is bounded by Canal-street on the south, Broadway on the west, Houston-street on the north, and the Bowery on the east. In this Ward, which has been for years a stronghold of the Tammany Ring, Lawrence will poll a very large vote, and will, beyond a doubt, receive a majority. The influence of the dram-shop politicians over the ignorant and uneducated resident voters has always retarded the introduction of any reform measures, and a large class of those who vote do so in favor of Tammany. Notwithstanding the internecine warfare between Hayes and Gibbons for the supremacy, the Tammany strength will not be divided, as both these men are active partisans of that faction. O'Brien has not been able to gain much of a foothold in this Ward and cannot expect to poll a large vote. There is, however, a powerful Irish organization, which will vote solidly for Grant and Wilson, but on the Mayoralty question will vote for O'Brien. The solid strength of the Republicans of the Ward will be cast for Havemeyer, but it is but a very small proportion of the total vote. A large number of the German population will also support Havemeyer.

FIFTEENTH WARD.

The Fifteenth Ward is bounded on the east by the Bowery and Fourth-avenue, on the north by Fourteenth-street, on the west by Sixth-avenue, Carmine, Bleecker and Bancock streets, and on the south by Houston-street. This Ward will certainly be carried for Havemeyer by a large majority—the real contest being between that gentleman and Mr. Lawrence. The great mass of the Republicans, a large element in the voting population of the Ward, will vote solidly for Mr. Havemeyer, while the Liberal Republicans, under the leadership of Ex-Congressman Thos. E. Stewart, will unite with the Tammany men and support Lawrence. O'Brien has not developed any considerable strength. Among the residents are a great many of the earliest and most consistent advocates of true and thorough Municipal reform, and these men are all sound for Havemeyer, irrespective of party. It was by the vote of the Reformers resident in this Ward that Senator Benedict was enabled to defeat Mike Norton last year, and these same influences are now zealously at work to secure the election of Mr. Havemeyer.

SIXTEENTH WARD.

The Sixteenth Ward is bounded on the east by Sixth-avenue, on the west by the North River, south by West Fourteenth-street, and north by West Twenty-sixth-street. In that portion of this Ward from Eighth-avenue to the river, between Fourteenth and Nineteenth streets, the sentiment seems to be in favor of O'Brien. The section indicated is a very poor one, populated almost exclusively by the Irish. There are, however, a large number of extensive shops and manufactories here, and so far as could be ascertained there was no pronounced opinion among the shop workmen in them in favor of any candidate. The vote of the working classes will probably be largely divided. Tammany Hall has a hold on them by old association. O'Brien has had his workers out and gained some strength, while Mr. Havemeyer, who resides in the district, is popular among them and will, therefore, poll largely of this vote. There is some German population along the line of Sixth-avenue which may also be depended on for him with certainty, beside some French voters who will probably support the Republican ticket, as their neighbors are almost exclusively Republican. But in that part of the Ward comprised between Fourteenth and Nineteenth streets, and Sixth and Eighth avenues, and from Nineteenth-street, between Sixth and Eleventh avenues, the population is of a better character than elsewhere. This is the "silent vote" district, and the majority of this vote will be cast for Havemeyer, the remainder being for Lawrence. The result will probably depend entirely on how this important portion of the population will go. There is at this time a dense fog of the banners, transparencies and flags so abundant on the east side of the City. The Ward, altogether, may be set down as in favor of Havemeyer.

SEVENTEENTH WARD.

This Ward is bounded on the west by the Bowery and Fourth-avenue, east by Avenue B, south by Rivington-street, and north by East Fourteenth-street. The Ward is densely populated, and almost exclusively by Germans of the poorer class. This colony extends from Rivington to Eleventh-street, where the intermixture of Irish begins. It does not, however, go west of Fourth-avenue. In the section bounded by First and Fourth avenues, between Fourth and Fourteenth streets, the residents are of a very substantial class, and include many men of large wealth among the old Knickerbocker families, who are all concentrated here. These voters are mainly old-line Democrats, and their vote may be reckoned, if ever to any appreciable extent, as sure for the Tammany nominee, who is himself of an old Knickerbocker family. Other residents here, and probably the larger number of the whole in the district, will go for Havemeyer. In the exclusively German section Havemeyer is the only candidate considered. The vote for him will be solid. In the upper portions of this Ward it was extremely difficult to get any definite information as to the drift of political sentiment from the Germans; the Irish were strong in their advocacy of O'Brien, and invariably claimed the whole Ward for him; but it was almost impossible to get a German in this neighborhood to say anything or a way or the other, though they are evidently all in favor of Havemeyer.

EIGHTEENTH WARD.

The Eighteenth Ward is bounded on the east by the East River, west by Sixth-avenue, north by Twenty-sixth-street, and south by East Fourteenth-street. This Ward is claimed to be solid for O'Brien, and all that portion of it lying east of Third-avenue appears to be so. A glance at the map will show that this portion is not as large as that lying west of Third-avenue, which contains a wealthy population, and is composed of Republicans, who polled the "silent vote" of the Ward, and, calculating on most extent of territory, reckoning seventy-five per cent. of this vote safe for Havemeyer, and twenty-five for Lawrence, it might be said that the former was sure to carry the Ward. It must be remembered, however, that the western portion, though the smaller, is much more densely populated. Here the tenement-houses abound, and each will send out its swarm of voters for O'Brien, while in the wealthier sections west, each house will probably only furnish on an average two qualified voters. Altogether, the chances may be said to be favorable to O'Brien's success, though it appears to be by no means sure for him as is commonly claimed.

NINETEENTH WARD.

This is one of the largest Wards in the City. It is bounded on the east by the East River, on the west by Sixth-avenue and Central Park, on the south by East Fortieth-street, and on the north by East Eighty-sixth-street. West of Third-avenue, the whole length of the Ward, is composed of a well-to-do population of merchants, bankers, and moneyed men generally; they have always been looked upon as Republicans or old-line Democrats, though it is among this class that so large a number of non-voters are to be found. This Ward is also claimed as an O'Brien stronghold, but his strength does not lie west of Third-avenue. Following the line of this avenue, from Fortieth-street up to Sixty-fifth-street, by inquiry at the various Boards of Registry, it was found that there was a large foreign element. This may be largely reckoned on for Havemeyer, though some of it can be counted on for Lawrence. Along Second-avenue, between Fortieth-street and Fiftieth, off to the river, the Irish population is rather numerous, though, immediately on the line of this avenue, the registry-books show that there is a plentiful sprinkling of Germans, mostly of the better class. From Fiftieth-street up to Eighty-sixth, the Ward is but sparsely populated, open lots being numerous, and in the northern section there is a large shanty settlement, inhabited entirely by the Irish. These are commonly supposed to be united on O'Brien, but on inquiry it was found that they were largely divided between him and the Tammany nominee. Taking the Ward generally, it may be said that O'Brien is strong along portions of the line of Second and Third avenues; that the Irish vote of the Ward between Second-avenue and the river is divided between him and Lawrence; that the vote of the Germans and Lawrence; that the vote of the Germans and Lawrence; that the Republicans, with a majority of the residents west of Third-avenue will go for Havemeyer, the remainder for Lawrence, and that the German vote will be given for Havemeyer, with ten or fifteen per cent. deducted for O'Brien and Lawrence. The contest in the lower portion of the Ward will be between Apollo Hall and the Republicans; in the upper between the Republicans and Tammany Hall.

TWENTIETH WARD.

This Ward is bounded north by West Fortieth-street, south by West Twenty-fifth-street, east by Sixth-avenue, and west by Hudson River. The Twentieth Ward will go into the Municipal contest with rigor. The working men of the various organizations are giving much attention to the work in hand, and thus far both parties have made a good show in the matter of kindling the flame of political enthusiasm by in-door and out-door demonstrations. The O'Brien party and the Havemeyer party have been marching and counter-marching for the campaign, and each party claims to have good grounds for asserting a victory for their respective champions. A careful survey of the Ward by those who are supposed to be political wiseacres, gives an inference from which O'Brien's victory seems assured. His continuous hold on the working with marked industry, and claim a large majority for him. Lawrence will run very well, but as present appearances seem to indicate, the race will be between O'Brien and Havemeyer, with probable chances of success for the former.

TWENTY-FIRST WARD.

The Twenty-first Ward, bounded by Sixth-avenue, Twenty-sixth-street, Fortieth-street and the East River, will give a large majority for O'Brien. It is his own Ward, and the one in which he reigns supreme. How far the change of political events and shiftings of party interests may affect his personal following in other portions of the City, in this Ward they will cause scarcely any material change in the strength of his supporters. To show his power, it is only necessary to refer to his contest with Bradley in 1871, when he defeated O'Brien having the Republican ticket, Bradley having the Tammany nomination. Out of 8,320 votes polled, Bradley received but 968 votes against 7,384 polled for O'Brien, giving the latter a majority of 6,416. The overwhelming Irish vote in the Ward, is almost solid for O'Brien. The Republican vote in the Ward is now, however, solid for Havemeyer; therefore the above figures will not represent O'Brien's vote this Fall.

TWENTY-SECOND WARD.

This Ward is bounded on the south by West Fortieth-street, on the east by Sixth and Eighth avenues, on the north by West Eighty-sixth-street, and on the west by the North River. This has always been considered an O'Brien Ward, as he is well known there and popular. The local vote of the Ward is about 10,000, and of this the O'Brien men claim that they will get over 6,000. Havemeyer will, however, run very strong, as the Germans are there in force, all of which is certain to be cast for him. As the Republican vote last year was 4,681, the German element holds the balance of power, so the Reformers are sanguine that Havemeyer will carry the Ward by a small majority.

SUMMARY.

It will be seen by these reports that the vote in the twenty-two Wards may safely be divided on the Mayoralty question as follows: Lawrence is reasonably certain to carry the First, Second, Third, Thirteenth and Fourteenth Wards, with the Seventh doubtful. The Lawrence majorities in these Wards will all be small, except, perhaps, the Fourteenth; therefore he is practically out of the race. O'Brien is tolerably secure of the Fourth, Fifth, Sixth, Eighteenth, Nineteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-first and Twenty-second Wards. Of these, in the first three and the last named, his majorities will undoubtedly be small, as the Tammany candidate will run with him closely. In the other four Wards O'Brien's supporters claim that he will get large majorities. Havemeyer's prospects, though taken up last, are by no means doubtful, as he will certainly carry the Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, Eleventh, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth. These seven Wards are all largely and densely populated, so his majorities will be very heavy, especially in the Ninth, Fifteenth, Sixteenth and Seventeenth. Our canvass of the Twelfth Ward shows it to be as present doubtful, with good indications in favor of Havemeyer. It will thus be seen that of the three candidates for the Mayoralty Mr. Havemeyer is already ahead of his Democratic competitor, with the tide of popular feeling increasing daily and steadily in his favor.

SUNDAY BRAWLS.

Shooting Affray in a Lager-Beer Saloon—A Serious Stabbing Affray.

Yesterday morning Dennis Delaney, of No. 307 East Twenty-sixth-street, who is an inspector of election in the Eighteenth Assembly District, was in the lager-beer saloon No. 241 East Twenty-eighth-street. James Brady, a painter, aged twenty-five, residing at No. 332 East Thirty-fifth-street, and two friends entered the place and invited Delaney to drink with them. As the men were strangers to him, he declined. A quarrel then ensued, and during the fracas which followed, Brady drew a revolver and shot Delaney in the right thigh, inflicting a very severe wound. Brady fled from the saloon, but was afterward arrested and locked up. Delaney was taken to his home. He refused to make any statement to the Police in regard to the matter.

At 2 o'clock yesterday morning Daniel McGovern, aged twenty-four, residing at One Hundred and Twenty-seventh-street and Sixth-avenue, became engaged in a quarrel with some unknown man at One Hundred and Twenty-eighth-street and Second-avenue, and, during the fracas which ensued, McGovern was stabbed in the neck by the stranger and severely wounded. He was attended by Police Surgeon Thomas, and was cared for at the Ninety-ninth-street Hospital.

HEAVY JEWELRY ROBBERY.

A Scientific Burglary in a John-Street Jewelry-Store.

The Safe Opened and Twenty Thousand Dollars' Worth of Diamonds Taken—The Insecurity of Business Buildings Exemplified—No Clue to the Burglars.

The block in John-street between Nassau and Broadway, is absolutely full of manufacturing jewelers' offices. There are about twenty janitors living in as many houses on the block, and an ex-policeman has been hired as a private watchman. Most of the houses, however, are unlocked and old, and easily entered by thieves, either by an abundance of sashes from the roof, or through windows easily reached from sheds behind. Between 6 o'clock on Saturday night, and 6½ o'clock yesterday morning, a gang of four expert burglars successfully accomplished a most daring robbery in No. 9 John-street. It is the only floor of which the private watchman has not a door-key. The second floor is occupied by Messrs. Ball & Barnard, wholesale jewelers. The third floor is used as a manufacturing jewelers' establishment by Messrs. Ormsby & Keogh. Mr. Ormsby was married about a year ago, and resides at No. 229 West Fifteenth-street. Mr. Austin W. Keogh, the other member of the firm, lives at No. 139 East Forty-sixth-street. In the rear of the floor they occupy is a small office with a wooden partition reaching to the ceiling, and lighted by two panes of glass. In this was one of Urban's old safes, purchased for $250, a perfectly worthless article, the doors made of common sheet-iron, which would not resist a single clever safe-burglar two hours. In this safe was placed, on Saturday afternoon, by Mr. Ormsby, diamonds set and unset, cameo rings, and unfinished work, worth between $15,000 and $20,000. The burglars entered the building on Saturday afternoon and hid themselves in a vacant room on the top floor. They had with them two valises, containing a complete kit of cutting tools, a sand-bag to knock a janitor senseless, two large pieces of black oil-cloth, a suit of blue linen overalls, fifty ham and beef sandwiches, and two bottles of brandy, besides leather with which to deaden the sound of their tools.

Mr. Ormsby left his office at 6 o'clock, and soon after the building was locked up. The "gang" then forced Mr. Ormsby's outer office door with a jimmy; drilled through the door of the small office, tacked their oil-cloth over the lights of glass and went to work. They were perfectly secure, and made short work of the old safe. They literally cut it to pieces, reaming out the rivets and pulling one of the doors completely off. Every scrap of jewelry in the safe they carefully put in their pockets, and then determined to pay their respects to Messrs. Ball & Barnard. They half cut out the lower panel of Ball & Barnard's office door, when one of the gang evidently thought of their false keys and opened the door with one. But the large chilled-iron safes in Messrs. Ball & Barnard's were too heavy for the burglars, who could open them, but not in the limited time at their disposal. They left a spare sledge-hammer handle on the office desk as a pleasant reminder. Officer Griffin, of the Second Precinct, tried the front door at 6½ o'clock, and found it secure. The thieves, on leaving Ball & Barnard's, went back to Ormsby & Keogh's, on the floor above, put all their traps in the little office, carefully relocked the doors, and, walking down stairs, opened the front door from the inside, and emerged into John-street with their plunder some time between 6½ and 8½ o'clock, at which latter hour Officer McGuckin found the front door open. The alarm was at once given, and Capt. Caffrey and one of his Sergeants entered the building. They saw that Ball & Barnard's had been entered but nothing stolen. Ascending to Ormsby & Keogh's, they found it had been entered, but could not discover any robbery. The main office was undisturbed, and the black oil-cloth of course prevented them looking into the small office where the safe was cut open, and the door of which the burglars had locked after them. Mr. Ormsby was sent for, and on his opening the door he was crazed by seeing the safe cut to pieces, everything of value taken, and the burglar's tools and sandwiches lying on the floor. As yet there is no trace of the thieves.
